side of the river occurred on Monday.

Santa Fe trains were running on schedule time according to F. T. Smith, and there has been no interruption of train service since repair of the bridge across the Santiago creek, near Orange, which was weakened by the first rush of storm waters.

The bridge across Santiago, on the Tustin branch of the Southern Pacific, has been damaged and is temporarily out of service, it was reported at the local station of the company. Workmen were engaged today making repairs and it was anticipated work would be completed by tomorrow evening. There will be no train service over this branch until Saturday, it was intimated. The line to Newport Beach, Huntington Beach, Smelter and Westminster is in good condition, the loop is being covered each day by a train.

Rushing waters in the vicinity of Irvine have done some little damage to homes, according to reports. The house of Ernest Cady, a mile south of Irvine, was washed from its foundation and moved about four feet.

Irvine Store Threatened
The Irvine store was threatened this morning, it was reported by A. C. Newell, proprietor. Boards placed around the store prevented water four inches above the floor of the store from rushing in. At one time this morning, water was two feet deep in the Spencer blacksmith shop. It was reported also that four inches of water covered the floor of the home of Supervisor George Jeffrey.

Nat H. Neff, city engineer, said slight damage had been done to pave streets in various portions of the city. Water running into cracks washed dirt from under the pavement and breaks have resulted.

Mails were moving in and out of Santa Ana today as scheduled. W. L. Deimling, district manager for the Southern California Edison company, said that the system in his district was operating 100 per cent, but that trouble was being experienced in the beach sections, which are in another district.

Word received by W. S. Decker today reported 14 inches of rain at Forest Home. No damage has resulted, it was said.

Severe loss to Anaheim and vicinity is believed to have been prevented by quick work in checking a break at 5 p. m., yesterday, in the west bank of the Santa Ana river, at a point one mile north of the Olive bridge. J. W. Price, city manager of Anaheim, and O. E. Steward, city engineer, were maintaining a close watch on the river and discovered the break as soon as it occurred.

NORMAL RAINFALL EXCEEDED BY INCH
LOS ANGELES, April 8.—Fresh torrents of rain fell in Southern California today, increasing the flood hazard and bringing the season's total precipitation nearly an inch above normal for the entire year.

At 9:30 a. m., the season's rainfall for Los Angeles and vicinity was 17.19 inches, with a storm total of 7.34. Total precipitation last year was only 6.51 inches.

Skies cleared in some sections late this morning, after further heavy downpours, but the weather bureau predicted additional rains tonight and possibly tomorrow.

All April rain records since the weather bureau for Southern California was established here 48 years ago were shattered by the late downpour.

Reservoirs Are Filled
Storage reservoirs were filled with water, worth hundreds of thousands of dollars for irrigation purposes, and fruit and grain crops were benefitted millions of dollars.

Two persons were drowned by floodwaters, hundreds of homes were imperilled, rail and highway traffic was demoralized in many sections, the deluge caused considerable damage to property.

Mrs. Maria Nobles, 39, lost her life when a small bridge on which she was walking in the Arroyo Seco collapsed and she fell into the stream.

Joseph Arena, 9, suffered a similar fate when a footbridge in the same district gave way.

A number of small homes in the Arroyo Seco were swept away.

A windstorm in the Santa Monica bay district unroofed several buildings and blew down telephone poles.

Traffic was badly interrupted by washouts in the San Fernando valley, and lowland areas were covered with water.

Bridges Carried Away
Lowland districts along the San Gabriel and other Southland streams were inundated by overflow waters, and many small bridges were carried away.

Santa Barbara and surrounding communities were cut off from their fuel supply when a section of a natural gas main was washed away by floodwaters near Rincon creek, between Ventura and Santa Barbara counties.

The Foothill boulevard bridge over the Eaton Canyon wash, near Pasadena was out. Several homes were submerged in the Hollenbeck Heights district, east of here.

At Arcadia, the county bridge was washed away.

Ocean-going commerce was seriously interrupted by rough seas.

Fate of the trans-marine freighter Sudocco, with a crew of 26 aboard, still was in doubt today. The vessel was three days overdue, and unheard from.

The Humboldt, which left here Tuesday morning for San Francisco, with 50 passengers, was reported in distress off Point Arguello, but later it was flashed she had made repairs and was proceeding under her own power.

Rainfall figures for Southern California at 5 a. m. were:

Imperial, 2.8; Los Angeles Harbor, 3.06; Mount Wilson, 14.64; Pasadena, 9.59; Pomona, 7.36; Redlands, 5.07; Riverside, 4.85; Santa Barbara, 6.01; San Bernardino, 7.47; San Diego, 4.39; Los Angeles, 7.01.

STATE STARTS TO SHAKE STORM GRIP

SAN FRANCISCO, April 8.—California today started to shake off the bulldog grip of storms.

Gales and rains reached their peak last night. The California coast along its entire length was lashed furiously by winds that carried battering rain in an almost unquenchable onslaught against shipping.

Coastwise steamers battled for every inch of distance. Schedules were disrupted, though no serious wrecks had been reported up to this morning.

A tug out of San Francisco, No. 2 of the International Fish company, was reported aground off Point Reyes. Late reports said that Capt. I. Balestrel and his crew of two men had not been removed from the boat and that they were in considerable peril.

Inland the storm was of equal fury last night. Three deaths were attributed to the gale, together with numerous injuries. Silvio Yolo, 19-year-old ranch worker, was electrocuted near Modesto when he came in contact with a wire fence over which a heavily charged power line had blown.

A. P. Butler, an employee of the Sutter Basin company, was drowned near Elk Horn, Yolo county, when he fell into a stream swollen by the heavy rains. He was swept away before he could be rescued by his companion.

Frank Rals, state highway commission employee, was killed when a tree fell upon the small touring car in which he was riding near Redding. A companion, Charles E. Cuff, road crew foreman for the state highway commission, was probably fatally injured.

Reports of broken power lines, interrupted telephone and telegraph service, flooded roads and railroad tracks, uprooted trees and unroofed houses were received from many parts of the state.

Four Western Pacific passenger trains were held up in the Feather River canyon by a landslide.

What Are You Doing For Your Puny Child?

For weak, frail, under-developed children—and especially those that have rickets, and need a sure builder that promotes the growth of teeth and bones, cod liver oil is the one medicine supreme—nothing helps like it.

But it is nasty and repulsive and evil smelling and nearly always upsets children's stomachs—so now up-to-date chemists advise McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Compound Tablets.

Children love them as they do candy, because they are sugar coated and easy to take. One boy gained 11½ pounds in seven weeks, and is now healthy and happy—thousands of other children have grown strong and robust.

Sixty tablets for 60 cents at C. S. Kelley Drug Co., and all druggists—but be sure and ask for McCoy's the original and genuine.

Give them to the sickly, frail child for 30 days and if they don't help—wonderfully, your druggist is authorized to hand you back the money you paid for them.—Adv.

eral hundred strong, was ordered from the field when the burning reservoirs boiled over and flames of oil shot like sky-rockets into the air.

The town of Edna, near the fire, has been abandoned. Scores of homes in the village were deserted, and residents came here for shelter.

The flames, which shot high into the air, were visible within a radius of 25 miles.

Anticipating an explosion and possible injuries to workers, an emergency first-aid outfit was organized by company physicians.

Great rolls of black, greasy smoke enveloped the countryside for miles in the vicinity of Edna and San Luis Obispo. A strong southerly wind fanned the flames to fresh fury, and whipped the burning oil from one end of the tank farm to the other.

MILLIONS LOST IN BREA OIL FIRE

began at once to throw up a barrier around the two tanks in flames to prevent the oil, in case it should boil over, from spreading to the other tanks and the residences. According to Brown and C. F. Jennings, in charge of the refinery, chances are good to hold the flames to the two original tanks hit by the lightning bolt.

Auto Driver Sees Flash
A streak of blue lightning, a crash of thunder, and two pillars of fire shooting up from the ground—that is the way C. W. McKinley, driver for the highway patrol service of the Automobile Club of Southern California, describes the start of the Brea oil tank fire.

McKinley was on the La Habra-Brea road, approaching the latter town, when he was partially blinded by a streak of lightning which struck the ground about 600 feet to his right. As he looked up, two huge pillars of fire shot up, filling the air with a cloud of smoke, gas and debris. The report of the combined thunder and explosion of the oil tanks shook the ground and almost caused the automobile to leave the roadway.

Even the farmers from the South African veldt wear evening dress when going to a theater.

Stand Up and Meet Mr. Bur Picker

The war is over and still some men scratch. Laugh that off! Only it is no laughing matter. It means that the scratcher is possessed of new woollens. It may be a suit. It may be "undies." (Gosh, whoever invented that word undies.)

When virgin wool comes from the clip it goes to the bur picker. That machine takes out the burs that the sheep picks up in its travels after breakfast, dinner and supper. And the more burs in the wool before, the more pieces of burs in, after.

But when you get a scratchy suit, just pat yourself on the back. For the wool it was made from, was honest to goodness virgin wool and no shoddy.

A WORD OF COMFORT
Instead of deserting the bleak stump cut-over lands of western Washington, the founders and colonizers of Alderwood Manor, between Seattle and Everett, are luring many people away from life in the great congested centers to the task of transforming this section into a succession of small poultry farms which are proving amazingly successful.
There is bound to be rich reward for those who, instead of running away or turning their backs upon facts, face life's problems squarely with the determination to make the best that can be made of things as they are. God's "best" always proves to be so much better than you had dreamed it could be.

The WELL-DRESSED MAN
By BEAUNASH
Correct Clothes To Meet The Obligation Of Every Occasion

THE IMPORTANCE OF YOUR COLLAR
Apportion the various articles that a man wears into percentages according to the area they cover upon the figure and, his collar might get the smallest allotment. Yet, this would be no true index to the importance of men's collar in the ensemble of dress. It should be remembered that those accessories which go near or next to the face contribute more to define character than, for example, gloves and shoes. That is because the face is the controlling center of personality; the seat of expression; the key to the individual. It dominates his whole appearance. Hence, the articles of wear to be most carefully studied and selected are collars, cravats and hats. It makes relatively little difference what style of a suit you wear, provided that it is of good quality and current fashion, but it makes a great difference what style collar you have on. The dividing line between the becoming and the unbecoming is very thin.

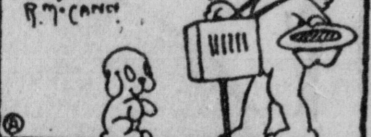

There is not; there never has been; there never will be a fixed fashion in collars. Anything to the contrary is undiluted tincture of tommyrot. The correct collar for a man to wear is that form which is most flattering to his neck and face. Indeed, many of the best-dressed men do not vary the style of their collars. They keep on wearing the particular shape which experience has demonstrated favors the cut of their jib. This is an admirable rule for all men to adopt.

The present fashion in cravats and the way of wearing them, that is, to draw them snugly up against the neckband, demands a collar with generous front opening, so that the scarf-knot will fit into it without forcing or crumpling. This feature is a characteristic of all the collars shown here. The first is the shape with abrupt, deep points. The second is more extended and triangular in front opening. The third is rounded off and resembles the style which has been more or less in vogue for many years.

White starched collars received a bit of a setback through the introduction of the colored stiff collar to match the shirt, as well as the collar-attached soft shirt. However, there are still many men who like both the formality and the feeling of wearing the white starched collar the year 'round, except for the sports. There is no law of fashion about the thing. However, be certain that you choose the shape becoming to your neck and face and be guided not at all by so-called "style tendencies."

PRESIDENT IN SPEECH BEFORE
PRESS MEETING

WASHINGTON, April 3.—The press of North and South America is responsible for the future of Pan-American cordiality, President Coolidge told the Pan-American Congress of Journalists, at its first meeting here today.

Regretting the "unfortunate lack of information" which has existed in the newspapers of the two continents concerning conditions in the other continent, the president foresaw a strong and lasting bond in the improvement and expansion of news services operating through the Americas and predicted a perfect understanding between the numerous nations of this hemisphere through the medium of the press.

Mistaken Ideas Given
"Someone has remarked there was a time when readers of our newspapers might have imagined that revolutions and volcanic disturbances were the chief prod-uct of Latin America," President Coolidge declared. "On the other hand, readers of Latin-American papers got little idea of our national life from the accounts of train wrecks, lynchings and divorces which it is said constituted the principal news printed there about our country."

"That day has passed. Since 1916, due to our increased cable facilities and the reduction of cable tolls, as well as a keen desire for more information, the amount of news exchanged between the Americas has been increased greatly and its character more constructive."

"I venture the prediction that, as a result of this congress the papers in the United States in the future will present more complete and more accurate pictures of the cultural and industrial progress of Latin America and that the press of those republics will give to their readers a better understanding of the ideals and purposes of the United States."

The president praised the South American press, declaring that one Latin-American newspaper "approached a university" for its great amount of public service in cultural and scientific endeavors.

Throughout the address, the president upheld the rights of free speech and a free press.

"A free and enlightened press becomes one of the safeguards of liberty," he declared. "It is the function of a free press not only to make truth available to everyone within its sphere, but to cherish and develop a public sentiment for all that is loyal to the truth."

The address ended with an expression of hope that the congress would become a permanent institution.

"The first congress of journalists was a fine idea," he said. "I hope it will achieve all that its promoters could wish. It seems to me it would be well if your gathering could be repeated periodically, possibly alternating between Latin America and the United States. Such meetings cannot fail to have far-reaching consequences."

The president spoke highly of educational and cultural progress in Latin America and also of development of commercial relations between North and South America.

Mr. H. A. Roemer, Los Angeles; W. W. Hoffman, San Francisco; H. L. Chase, F. G. Hames, A. D. Catterlin, J. M. Ritchie, George Edgar, and Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Frisbie, all of Los Angeles.

R. P. Mitchell, county superintendent of schools; J. A. Cranston, city superintendent of schools; and F. A. Henderson, principal of the Orange union high school, members of the California Council of Education, will leave tomorrow for Oakland, where they will attend the annual spring meeting of that body.

A bursting ammonia pipe in Ketner's confectionery served to fill the place with fumes this morning but none of the employees were overcome, according to Lawson Shepherd, who is associated with his mother, Mrs. Minnie Ketner, in the operation of the business. The fire department made a run to the confectionery and turned off the ammonia pipes and an expert was summoned from Los Angeles to repair the broken pipe.

Mrs. E. P. Stafford of 118 Edgewood road is in Los Angeles visiting at the home of her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Palmer, who have just welcomed to their home a little daughter, born March 29, and mother and baby are reported as doing well.

Miss Phyllis White, secretary at the First Presbyterian church of office and Miss Nancy Elder, Y. M. C. A. secretary, went to Laguna Beach yesterday with a group of Girl Reserves, who are enjoying a house party. The party will return tomorrow. It had been planned to go to Camp Lewis in the Santiago canyon, but owing to weather conditions, the plans were changed.

"Flowers, food and fashions, fancy work, follies, fun!" Isn't that an intriguing slogan? It has been adopted by the Santa Ana Valley Ebells society for its "Spring Market," which is being planned by an enthusiastic committee for April 23 and 24 from 10 a. m. to 10 p. m. each day.

Mrs. J. E. Gowen is chairman of the general committee and she announces that very small admission fee has been decided upon to the bazaar and flower show, the latter being especially interesting right now after the fine rains. Everything for the garden will be on sale.

SCOUT CIRCUS
IS POSTPONED
FOR ONE WEEK

The big Boy Scout Jamboree, planned for tomorrow night, has been postponed for one week because of unfavorable weather conditions.

This was the announcement made this morning by Roland E. Dye, scout executive of Orange county, following a conference with committee members of the American Legion and the various service clubs, which are promoting the event.

According to Dye, it was necessary to postpone the big event because of every indication pointing to bad weather for the remainder of the week. To have gone on with the show, he declared, not only would have rendered futile the work of the various organizations, but defeated the main objective of the undertaking. The postponement will be accepted as an opportunity to put on a still bigger and better show in every respect. The Boy Scout band, of Los Angeles, already has assured its co-operation for the postponed date.

The full machinery of the 40 and 8 organization of the American Legion, commanded by Capt. Joe Plank, is being thrown into the work for the next week, it was added.

There will be attractive booths in the bazaar, where all sorts of articles will be attractively arranged, and there will be good programs and many special features, which will be announced from time to time.

This will be the last big Ebells affair for the season. Mrs. Gowen has called a meeting of her committee members for tomorrow at 2 p. m. at her home, 928 Spurgeon street.

Miss Viola Spencer went to Los Angeles to visit her sister Miss Elsie Spencer who is manager of one of the Busy Bee candy stores.

NATIVE BARGAIN INSTINCT ENDS TRIAL IN HURRY

Isaac E. Chadwick, head of the Chadwick Pictures corporation, Hollywood, made what he considered a "smart" settlement of a lawsuit, which was heard yesterday by Superior Judge Z. B. West, the outgrowth of an accident that occurred on location.

In settling the $697.85 damage claim of Rogers brothers, Balboa boat owner, for $350, Chadwick brought his native instinct for bargaining into play, much to the admiration of his attorney, J. Allen Frankel, and the delight of court attaches.

Chadwick made a good bargain, but, if darkness hadn't forced his hand, he would have made a better one, he believed.

The offer of a $350 settlement came first from Attorney M. B. Wellington, representing Rogers brothers.

"Ah, ha!" answered Chadwick, "I'll tell you what I'll do. I'll give you just $300. Yes? That's a good offer, too. Eh?"

"No," said Wellington.

Would Flip Coin

"Well then, how's this. I'll match you to see whether I pay you $150 or $450. See, I have four bits here. I'll flip it. How about it? Hah? How about it? Shall I flip? Are you a sport?" Wellington demurred and stuck to his original figure. Chadwick talked with his tongue and both hands but couldn't get the attorney to accept his "sporting proposition."

Finally he shrugged his shoulders. "Go ahead with the trial," he ordered his attorney.

The trial proceeded until the afternoon closing hour approached. Judge West ordered adjournment until today. Chadwick, without waiting action from his attorney, leaped excitedly to his feet.

"Oh," he protested. "I can't come back tomorrow. This is costing me $2000 a day, judge."

"You are in this litigation and you will have to come back," the court replied.

"But judge, let me talk to you. My company is loafing around while I am here and it is costing me $2000 a day. Oh!"

"Be here tomorrow," the judge ordered.

Decides To Settle

"Ach," said Chadwick. "Go ahead and settle. Settle quick," he told his attorney.

Rogers brothers sued Chadwick because of the loss of a boat rented by the film company in staging a scene at Balboa. The boat was destroyed by a dynamite explosion that supplied some unintentional realism to the scene.

According to testimony yesterday, it was arranged for the boat to pass before the camera, the dynamite then to be exploded under a float just beyond the boat.

In some unexplained manner, the dynamite charge became misplaced and was directed under the boat when it was exploded.

Everett Boone, of Balboa, was in the boat when it was blown up. Testifying yesterday, he described the experience rather vaguely.

"I don't know much about it," he drawled laconically. "It happened so d—n quick."

A-DOF-LUS. NEW MILK PRODUCT

Put on Market in Orange County By Local Dairies

The Excelsior Creamery company and Raitt's Sanitary Dairy are launching this week the sale of a pure acidophilus milk on the commercial milk market under the trade name of A-dof-lus. This product is described in a statement issued by the local dairies as follows:

"For purposes of classification, A-dof-lus may be called a delicious, creamy, cultured buttermilk, because A-dof-lus tastes like buttermilk; but here the similarity ends, for this new product is of an entirely different content, and has a background of therapeutic service seldom claimed by any commercial product.

"A-dof-lus is not a new idea, for the healthful qualities of acidophilus have long been known to the medical profession in cases of intestinal disorder. However, the price has been too high for popular use, and as a result the general public has been ignorant of this highly-beneficial and delightful food product. Now, for the first time in this county, these two well known firms will deliver A-dof-lus, pure and fresh daily to your home, at about commercial milk prices.

"It is a pleasant, nutritious beverage—deliciously palatable, with a high caloric content. In addition, A-dof-lus has health qualities possessed by few, if any, other food products. The rich, creamy whiteness of pure, fresh buttermilk. If you like buttermilk, you will delight in the superior quality of A-dof-lus. It is very easily digested and is fine for young and old alike."

Father Leaves Letter Series To Guide Son

VINELAND, N. J., April 3.—Until he reaches man's estate, John S. Stevenson, 5 years old, will receive a father's counsel, although his father, Richard Stevenson, lawyer, and World war veteran, died here recently, following an operation.

This was learned following the opening of a private box of letters in Stevenson's office.

The first letter, just delivered to the child, notified him of his unusual legacy and recommended to the growing boy care and reverence for his mother.

"Each birthday," the letter said, "you will get a letter from your daddy and you will get the last letter the day you are married."

"Daddy is proud of his little boy and knows he will take care of his mother's memory mothers always come first."

CHAMBER PLANS BIG DRIVE FOR NEW MEMBERS

The greatest membership campaign ever inaugurated by the Santa Ana Chamber of Commerce will be held within the next six weeks. A committee, consisting of more than 50 members of the organization, was appointed this morning at a special meeting of the board of directors.

According to tentative plans, outlined at the meeting today, the campaign will last for a period of five days and, during that time, 400 prospective members will be called upon and solicited to join either the senior or junior division of the chamber.

The committee is headed by Sam Hurwitz and the first meeting will be held in the chamber of commerce rooms Wednesday night, April 14, at 7:30. The exact dates for the membership drive have not been selected, but it is believed it will be some time during the early part of May.

The following were named members of the committee:

Hurwitz, chairman; W. A. Paxton, John Knox, Robert L. Brown, George R. Wells, Fred H. Taylor, Albert Hill, Ed McFadden, E. S. Gilbert, Robert E. Brown, John Tetes, Orlyn Robertson, B. J. MacMullen, Herb Miller, A. M. Faccou, Fred Merker, W. L. Delmling, Earl Morrow, Robert Speed, C. E. Stewart, Earl Busby, Ernest Winbiger, Eddie Holmes Jr., Hill and Carden, Arnold Peak, Hubert Bowen, M. S. Robinson, Wilbur Getty, Elmer Schindler, E. C. Chapman, the Rev. William E. Roberts, the Rev. F. T. Porter, D. K. Hammond, Walter Spicer, Oliver Halsell, J. S. Smart, J. T. Raitt, Fred Rowland, W. Roy George, Don Andrews, Fred Fuller, W. I. Stewart, T. F. Ham, R. E. Emison, Earl Matthews, Vern Whitson, Charles Kendall, H. B. Van Dine, Hugh Gerard, E. T. Maister, Charles Cotant, Jess Goodman, L. R. Crawford, Floyd Croddy, Asa Hoffman, John Newcomer, Clyde Rowland, Wayne Goble, Hugh Lowe, Jim Livesey sr. and Don Jerome.

The only other business to come before the special meeting this morning was the advisability of entering a display in the Valencia Orange show, in Anaheim, in May. A committee, headed by George Shattuck, assisted by J. P. Baumgartner and Barney Crawford, was named to raise the sum of $500 among merchants and growers of the community to defray the expenses of installing such an exhibit.

Upstairs there are three pleasant bedrooms with large closets, and a good bathroom. In the hall is a built-in linen case that is enclosed by one of the regular interior doors.

French doors are well used, to give the appearance of space in the first floor.

PRESBYTERIANS GIVE $22,105 TO S. A. CHURCH

The congregation of the United Presbyterian church last year contributed $22,105 for support of the local church and for its benevolences. It was revealed by the financial report, submitted at the annual meeting of the congregation last night.

Contributions for benevolences totaled $11,467, of which amount the women's missionary societies gave $1443. The contributed sum for support of the church aggregated $10,638. The church has an active membership of 400, according to the report.

A. J. McFadden was elected chairman for the coming year and J. A. Smiley and C. C. Dunbar were elected to the board of trustees for a period of three years.

The congregation voted to assume the entire support of Mr. and Mrs. T. Russell, missionaries to Abyssinia. These missionaries are connected with the agricultural department of the mission work located at Addis Ababa, capital of Abyssinia. Mr. Russell recently introduced some American-made farming machinery into that country to the great satisfaction of Crown Prince Ras Tafari.

The congregation is planning to entertain Mr. Russell and family, who will visit Santa Ana April 24 to 31 and will be the guests of the members of the congregation.

December of this year marks the fiftieth anniversary of the organization of this church in Santa Ana. Plans are being made for the celebration of this event.

A reception for new members, received during the year, followed the business session. The Rev. Milford Tiddball made the address of welcome, to which Miss Cora Henderson, of Huntington Beach, responded for the new members.

Dinner preceded the business session.

174 Lose Permits For Auto Driving

SACRAMENTO, April 3.—That those who ride may read and thus be saved from walking, the state division of motor vehicles has revealed that operators' licenses of 174 motorists have been revoked during the last two years.

RAINS PREVENT OFFICERS FROM TESTING LIGHTS

Testing of automobile lights in Orange county was brought to an abrupt halt last night by heavy rains, which fell in Anaheim, where a dozen or more state traffic officers had gathered to conduct the tests. The night before the officers arrested 154 drivers for driving cars with deficient lights, in tests made in Santa Ana.

Capt. Henry S. Warner, of the Orange county squad, said today that tests would be made in Anaheim tonight, weather permitting.

Orange county has been given an unusual high rating in the light tests already held. Captain Warner stated, there being only a few illegal lens found on cars tested. Most of the trouble experienced was caused by lights being out of focus, it was said.

A check of all garages, where cars are stored also is being made by traffic officers. Reports on automobiles, which have been left stored in public garages longer than 24 hours, is necessary to conform with the state law, it was said, and several garage owners have been given tickets, citing them into the traffic office for instructions.

Traffic officers also are checking all light testing stations in the county, to see that they are properly equipped to give service and to determine their efficiency, Captain Warner said.

In referring to the report on Orange county automobile lights, which was favorable, Captain Warner said that his men had been instructed to check lights when cars were stopped on the road and that he was of the opinion that the continual testing had gone a long way in making the lights of this county better than state officials have found in other counties.

Sisters Offer Welcome To Club Members at Easter Party

AVENDER and pink sweet peas combined with graceful ferns formed the decorative features of a pretty party given recently by the Misses Ruth and Ann Robertson at their Cypress avenue home with members of the Paul club as guests.

While the club is an afternoon one, with needlework as its chief pursuit, the afternoon was devoted more to friendly chat as plans were formulated for the approaching hospitality night when husbands and friends will be entertained. Mrs. Thomas Geisler and Mrs. Allen Mandy will be joint hostesses and the party will be held at the ranch home of Mrs. Geisler between Santa Ana and Huntington Beach, the extreme latter part of April.

Late in the afternoon the sister hostesses served a dainty refreshment menu with confectionery favors of small rabbits to suggest the Easteride. The club members will meet again on the afternoon of April 15 with Mrs. Roy Thompson on Lowell street.

CHURCH SOCIETIES

United Presbyterian

The missionary society of the United Presbyterian church met yesterday afternoon in the church parlors where Mrs. Mina Tidball, president, conducted the session.

Suggestions were given by various members, for gifts from the society to Mr. and Mrs. Fred Russell, missionaries in Abyssinia supported by the church, and who will visit the congregation during the latter part of April. It was decided to leave the matter in the hands of a committee.

Mrs. J. T. Raitt was appointed delegate to the federated missionary meeting scheduled for April 23, with Mrs. William Smart named as alternate. In the absence of Mrs. John Henderson, the devotions were led by Mrs. S. H. Finley, chairman of the program committee. "The Beginning and Development of Home Mission Work" was the program theme and was discussed first by Mrs. Finley.

"Work Among the Negroes" was the theme of a paper by Mrs. M. E. Lockhart Mrs. C. E. Duckett read a paper on "Work Among the Mountaineers" and Mrs. Finley read one on "Work Among the Foreign-Born." Mrs. W. H. McPeak talked interestingly of the efforts made by church workers with the foreigners of Sharon, Penna.

Reports of the Women's Presbyterian held recently in Whittier, were offered by Mrs. Scott Torrens and Mrs. H. W. Herring. In a friendly social hour, members of the Girls' Reserves served tea and wafers.

First Baptist

In spite of the rain there was a goodly attendance at the all-day meeting of the First Baptist Women's society held Wednesday. The morning was taken up with sewing for the fresh air-camp and with making hospital supplies.

At noon 68 members sat down to the April fool luncheon and were surprised to be served with delicious looking cream puffs, but when the puffs were opened they were not full of cream, but were stuffed with potato salad. And when dessert time arrived a huge pudding was brought in. It was especially good to look upon but on closer examination was found to be made of paper. Tea was served; from a gasoline can and coffee from a tea kettle.

In the afternoon a program was opened by Mrs. H. Wheeler's talk on "Christ's Prayers." Mrs. E. Steffanson and son, Leslie, sang two negro spirituals, accompanied by Miss Mame Havens. Mrs. Harry Kern transported her listeners from Santa Ana to Czechoslovakia, thence on a trip through Rome, Naples and Cairo to the Belgian Congo where Mrs. F. Aubuchon acquainted her audience with the people, their manner of living and their history. Mrs. Aubuchon told of the hospitals, schools and missionary churches.

The program was concluded by Mrs. W. B. Lockett who told of the work accomplished by Dr. B. L. Lockett, a medical missionary in the Congo.

CHILD'S BEST LAXATIVE— CALIFORNIA FIG SYRUP

HURRY MOTHER! A teaspoonful of "California Fig Syrup" now will thoroughly clean the little bowels and in a few hours you have a well, playful child again. Even if cross, feverish, bilious, constipated or full of cold, children love its pleasant taste.

Tell your druggist you want only the genuine "California Fig Syrup" which has directions for babies and children of all ages printed on bottle. Mother you must say "California." Refuse any imitation.—Adv.

Northwest section members of the Ladies' Aid society of the First Presbyterian church will meet with Mrs. L. K. Strong, 1715 North Ross street Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock. There will be special music features. All women of the congregation who live in the northwest section of the city are urged to attend.

Music Section of Ebells will meet in the lounge Monday morning at 11 o'clock where Miss Edith Cornell will talk on "Orchestra." Illustrating her lecture with victrola numbers. The members will then adjourn to the auditorium where they will listen to selections by a trio composed of W. G. Armstrong, cellist, Mrs. Walter Spicer, violinist, and Miss Ruth Armstrong, pianist. A pot-luck luncheon will then be served in the section rooms and each member is requested to bring a covered dish.

S. A. Woman's Club

Tuesday's meeting of the Santa Ana Woman's club was a pleasant affair in which members wandered to and fro over the United States under the direction of those who related details of such wanderings.

The session was held at the Unitarian church and was presided over by the president, Mrs. Walter Moore. Mrs. Ella Webster led in the recital of the club collect after which a half hour of singing was enjoyed with Mrs. Mary Stanley at the piano. Opening with "America the Beautiful," the numbers included all the dear old-fashioned melodies such as "Swanee River," "Home Sweet Home," and kindred songs of an earlier day.

The informal travels resulted from roll call to which each answered with an account of some special trip taken recently. All the members took active part, and many of the talks stood out in point of interest. Mrs. Rosa Diers told entertaining details of a summer's trip to Chicago and points in Michigan and Wisconsin. Mrs. Moore, who has had many wonderfully interesting motor trips, told of the salmon fishing and canneries of the north.

Stored Massachusetts and points in and around Salem, North Adams and other New England cities were described by Mrs. Hohen who told of the Scottish communities there. Mrs. Wilson, whose home was in Michigan and who has made several trips between there and California, told incidents of those journeys.

Following the program, impromptu but most entertaining, a letter from D. Eymann Huff of the Hewes ranch was read, proffering the famous Hewes park to the club for outings and picnics. Decision was reached to hold the annual June picnic there, and the date of June 29 selected with the secretary instructed to ask Mr. Huff to reserve the park and also to thank him for the hospitality.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Jones are receiving the friendly congratulations of a wide circle of friends, on their wedding which was an event of last Sunday morning at 9 o'clock at the Carl C. Hess home, 524 East Third street.

Mrs. Jones was Miss Dorothy May Hudson and made a most attractive bride in a frock of soft blue silk combined with lace in ecru tint. She carried Cecil Brunner roses. Miss Merle Fink served as honor maid while Earl Smith was best man for Mr. Jones. Guests were confined to the family circle and a few close friends of the bride.

The ceremony was read impressively by the Rev. O. V. Long, pastor of the Church of the Brethren and was followed by a period of congratulations and good wishes from the assembled guests. Many handsome gifts were received by the young people who will make their home at 316 Oak street.

Pleasant Hospitality Dispensed by Host At Country Club

TANLEY CLEM today was receiving the congratulations of friends upon the success of a dancing party at which he was host last night at Santa Ana Country Club.

Approximately twenty couples were present to enjoy his hospitality and lose themselves in the maze of dreamy waltzes and lively one-steps and fox-trots, music for which was furnished by the Glenn Coe orchestra of Orange. Punch was dispensed during the dancing interval and a light supper was served near the close of the evening.

Mr. Clem's guests were Messrs. and Mesdames Arthur Bowman, Merle Morris, Charles D. Swanner, Irving Doyle, Ed Marhe, Dr. R. M. Fortier, E. E. Boething, Don Juden, Ridley Smith, George Scovel, Charles Pritchard; the Misses Maurine Mathin, Laverne Griffith, Lorene Croddy; Messrs. Frank McCarter, Dr. J. L. Wehrly, Leonard Baker, Horace Pine and Floyd Croddy.

Woman's Magazine Filled with Interest

April's number of The Western Woman, of which Ada King Wallis is editor and publisher, has reached its subscribers throughout the county and adjacent districts, bringing a message of spring's enthusiasm to the home and club-women it is designed to reach.

Its features include fiction by an Altadena writer, Anna M. Luckey; an article pertaining to a Brea resident, Mrs. Nina Russell, and her memories of James Whitcomb Riley; the usual book review department conducted by Miss Margaret Livingston, county librarian, and many other features of special interest to club workers who will find events of the future, announced, and those of present interest, discussed.

Ebells Travelers

Members of the first travel section of Ebells society were particularly fortunate when they decided to hold their April meeting a week earlier than the usual date, and thus were spared the necessity of traveling through the rain or taking the alternative of postponing the session. For the monthly gathering of the friends of long standing that comprise the section, was held at the Laguna Beach summer home of Mrs. John P. Baumgartner last week just prior to the first storm which ushered in California's splendid and unprecedented rainfall.

The section members had an enjoyable afternoon, "Our Village" being particularly beautiful in its new spring robes. The outlook from every window of the Baumgartner home offered an entrancing view of green hills or sapphire sea. In the intervals of program, chat and scenic pleasures, the section named new officers for the coming year, electing Mrs. William Smart to the post of leader and Mrs. I. W. Van Cleave as secretary.

Music Recital

With a general invitation issued by Earl Fraser to one of his celebrated pupil recitals at the Chandler Music room tomorrow night at 8 o'clock, a record-breaking crowd is anticipated to greet a talented child, 8-year-old Beatrice Granas, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. P. Granas of Santiago avenue.

Little Miss Beatrice will present the entire evening's program with her piano numbers varied by readings and musical readings. The opening group will present a Mozart Fantasia in D Minor, Schubert's "Musical Moment" and one of her own little waltzes, for Beatrice composes as well as interprets. A group of readings illustrating the lessons in expression which she has been receiving from Holly Lash Vial, will follow, to be succeeded in turn by five Grieg numbers, a group of musical readings (Frieda Peycke compositions), two Chopin mazurkas and a final group of Chopin waltzes.

Effective Treatment Seen in New Gland Discovery

Scientists of international prominence declare that the vital glands of young animals have remarkable power for renewing vitality, toning up the entire system and building up nerve force.

By a new discovery these glands are now scientifically prepared in convenient, compact tablet form for internal use. This preparation is known as Glanogen, prepared from the vital glands of healthy young animals.

People who have taken Glanogen only a few days have written letters telling of results that seem astonishing. Accept no substitutes. Insist on genuine Glanogen, the original gland tonic. C. S. Kelley drug store will supply you.—Adv.

SPRING FASHIONS REVEALED BY STROLLERS ON BOARDWALK

THESE TWO BOARDWALK STROLLERS REPRESENTED COMING SPRING AND PASSING WINTER IN THE SUNDAY PAGEANT AT ATLANTIC CITY.

Costumes displayed at recent style parades on the famous boardwalk of Atlantic City were marked by brilliancy and charm and highly indicative of a most colorful spring season. Notes taken by eager style experts revealed many interesting things, for instance:

Hats—Small, highly colored, snappy and ever so plain. Square crowns like a man's topper in bang-tail and similar styles. Green seemed to have the inside track, from the auburn and yellow shades to the darkest leaf tints. Much yellow, too, about the shade of the family canary. Yellow frocks flirited from beneath discreet dark coats.

Lines—Straight, but very easy. Where is all this flare the style journals talk about? All the easy-to-look-at costumes were straight little coats wrapped about straight little bodies with a generous helping of light-colored silk hosiery in view.

Fur—How exotic! Navy blue and green pelts adorning coats of the same shade, such fur as never grew in the jungle or on the domestic puss. Strange mottlings and nervous markings that betrayed the hand of the dyer rather than nature. But on the whole, less fur than usual.

Scarfs—Millions of them. Bright and flamboyant. Plain and figured. Chiffon and silk, large and small. All over the place.

Shoes—Snappy and neat. Not overdone. The old oxford has been rejuvenated so that it's own mother wouldn't recognize it. It's stopped looking sensible, has bobbed its vamp and lifted its heel and been Frenched at every turn. Pumps plain.

Bouquets—Very swanky. Expensive looking in spite of being very small—a single gardenia or an orchid nestling in garden greens. Artificial boutonnières are frankly so and have added a coat or lacquer of futuristic color scheme to glorify

Handbags—Large and roomy in very high colors such as red, green or purple.

Colors—Not so bright as you might expect except for a note of accent such as a hat or scarf. Gray, the leading color, not only of French shades, but in the dark mixtures and tweeds. Lots of navy blue.

Suits—Plain and tailored, with the closest possible shoulder line and a high collar showing beneath. All in all, a hard season on father.

JUSTICE DEFENDS POLICY OF METING OUT JAIL SENTENCES TO RECKLESS AUTO SPEEDERS

Speed alone? No.
Speed combined with recklessness? Yes.
Does sending speeders to jail hurt business? That's all bunk.
These answers were given today by Justice of the Peace Kenneth E. Morrison in response to questions as to whether he sends speeders to jail just because they speed.

"In every instance in which I have sent a speeder to jail," said Morrison, "the element of danger to others has been present in a flagrant way."

"This notion that many seem to have that I send a man to jail for going more than 50 miles an hour is wrong. I send him to jail for endangering the lives of others on the highways. High speed is conducive to danger, but speed alone does not mean danger. Sixty-five miles an hour meeting and passing cars in traffic is quite likely to entail danger to others."

This positive statement given by Justice Morrison comes at a time when criticism seems to have been launched at Morrison's office. Friends of Morrison say that an effort is being made by some, who want Morrison defeated at the polls, to make it appear that he is harming the city by doing what Morrison says is his plain duty.

"I'm not saying that the talk just now is political," said Morrison, "but in view of the coming election, it just looks that way."

Court Had Testimony
"Last week," said the justice of the peace, "there was considerable publicity given to the fact that a young high school student from Pasadena went to jail. He was arrested when going 68 miles an hour. That seems to be all the public knows about the case. I know more about it than that. I had the testimony of witnesses that this young driver, while tearing along at that rate of speed, did so on a highway where others were traveling. Perhaps you or I or some other law-abiding citizen with his family might have been there. The witnesses showed beyond question that this driver crowded five machines off the road. How many more was not shown. While indulging in his whim or craze for speed, in the space of 11 miles, he endangered the lives of at least 20 or 25 men, women and children. How many women were so badly frightened they couldn't sleep that night? How many were taken to the edge of death?"

"Publicity also was given to the fact that a young lady school teacher was sent to jail for going 55 miles an hour. All the public seems to grasp in relation to her sentence was that she was traveling fast. This court had more than that. I knew that while speeding at this rate of speed, she actually passed numerous automobiles and failed to stop when signalled. She was driving recklessly, without regard for the safety of others on a section of highway where there are curves."

"I ask you, if you were a justice of the peace, charged with doing your duty, would you pussy foot around cases of that kind? I'll not dodge my plain duty, just because some people get the mistaken idea that would-be high speeders avoid passing through this county at 60 miles an hour."

"I take into consideration emergencies that may exist, do not send on an iron bound rule. True, I have a schedule by which I aim to treat all persons alike. Just because a man has a bank full of money is no reason why he should be apologized to by a justice of the peace. My idea of a square deal for everybody is to so conduct my court that a poor man does not get the worst of it. He is entitled to just as square a deal as is the man with a fat bank account—that much and no more—and what's more, he'll get it, to the best of my ability."

The justice said that he had been informed that there is a belief among many that he "cracks it to" the tourist.

Few Tourists Arrested
"To begin with," said Morrison, "very few tourists have been in my court. I don't believe there has been a dozen in the last year. Instead of throwing the tourists in jail or handing them heavy fines, unless the element of reckless, hazardous driving enters into the arrest, I talk to the tourist and try to show him what our laws are. I give him a copy of the California motor laws and have him sit down in my office and, right there, read them, so that I know that when he goes out he will be less likely to break our traffic laws. And, having instructed him in that way, I let him go without sentence, or with a suspended sentence. The chamber of commerce or the publicity department of the county could treat a tourist no more fairly than I do. The tourist who wilfully breaks our laws and makes himself a menace is entitled to be treated accordingly."

"It is my opinion that very nearly 100 per cent of those who are brought into my court are knowingly and wilfully breakers of the law. My experience with the motorcycle officers is that they are instructed to let the light offenders go with a reprimand. I get only the positive offenders. Those who are dealt with in my court in nearly every instance know full well that in this county there is a definite effort to make our highways safe for travel. It is my purpose to co-operate in that effort. If I failed to send reckless, hazard-taking speeders to jail, I wouldn't be doing my share or my duty."

days and holidays, just because the traffic is getting heavier all the time?

"On a recent Sunday, according to an estimate of the custodian of the county park, no less than 15,000 people visited the park. That probably was the record crowd for a day not a holiday. The custodian says that nearly all these people came from outside Orange county. My guess is that 90 or 95 per cent came from Long Beach, Los Angeles, Pasadena, Pomona and other cities. Does that look as though people were avoiding Orange county? The truth is that no one who expects to drive safely and sanely avoids the county."

Spasm of Talk
"I don't know why just the last three or four weeks there has been a spasm of talk to the effect that enforcing speed laws in Orange county by the justice's court has hurt business. Listen to this question: If enforcing the speed laws now just exactly as they have been enforced, so far as the justice's court is concerned, for years and years, is responsible for the condition of business of lunch counters, soda fountains, hardware stores and shoe stores—if I am responsible for that—isn't the justice's court to be given credit for the spurge of business we had a few years ago? It's all bunk. The fixing of penalties of law violators has nothing to do with the condition of anybody's business."

Change of Venue Probably Saves Girl Jail Term

Through the action of Justice of Peace Kenneth Morrison in granting her a change of venue, Miss Gertrude Jentes, daughter of a prominent Garden Grove family, today probably had escaped a sentence of five days in the Orange county jail for speeding.

Miss Jentes, who was arrested on the Newport Beach boulevard by Officer Frank Vaughn, appeared yesterday before Morrison and through her attorney, Z. B. West, Jr., asked that the trial of the case be transferred to the Newport Beach justice court on the ground that the offense as charged took place in that township.

After questioning the officer and learning that Miss Jentes was arrested between Costa Mesa and Newport Beach, Judge Morrison ruled that he had no jurisdiction in the case and transferred it to the beach court.

Morrison usually jails persons convicted of speeding 50 miles an hour.

ROWLAND TELLS KIWANIS CLUB ABOUT MANUFACTURE AND USES OF GOLD LEAF

C. W. Rowland, local sign painter and a member of the Kiwanis club, yesterday brought to the members of that organization, present at the weekly meeting, a recital of the manufacture and uses of gold leaf. The speaker evidenced an intimate knowledge of the process of manufacture, and discussed his subject in an entertaining manner.

In pointing out that two of the 800 concerns in the United States manufacturing gold leaf are located at Orange, Rowland said that in many respects gold leaf is one of the most monderful materials fashioned by the hand of man. He said it is made from a material with which all are familiar, and yet is not common, although it is seen in some form every day. The material is gold.

"In all ages, in every language, the very name, gold, has been alluring and compelling," the speaker said, in pointing out that gold was the compelling force directing the early argonauts to cross strange seas and to visit strange lands, no matter in what direction—whether Mexico, the Yukon, California or Australia.

Unique in Metal Family
"Gold has a unique place in the metal family, as well as an unique place among the nations of the world, for it is the standard of value of the world over," Rowland continued. "Aside from the use of gold in the manufacture of jewelry and for coinage, it is used commercially in the form of gold leaf for stamping book covers, pencils, sweat bands, ribbon badges, decorating picture frames and for signs. Forty per cent of the product of the nation is used by sign painters and the remainder in minor ways."

"Gold leaf has several apparently contradictory properties. It will stand the elements for years, but it is so frail that handling destroys it. Gold leaf is opaque. Cover any object with a sheet of foil and the light hides it, but when the sheet is held to the light, objects may be seen through it."

Rowland said there had been little or no improvement in the method of making gold leaf over the methods employed 3000 years ago, and asserted that this is the only manufactured article in which there has not been a very decided improvement in method of production.

250,000 Sheets to Inch
Stating that 250,000 sheets of gold leaf make a package but one inch thick, the painter said the leaf is made by adding one-half grain each of silver and copper to 20 grains of fine gold, melted and cast into small bars, the latter being run through steel rollers and coming out as a ribbon 1-1000 of an inch thick. The product then is cut into one-inch squares.

Entering into discussion of intimate details of reducing the mixture to gold leaf, Rowland said: "These squares of gold are next placed between sheets of parchment four inches square, interleaved until there are about 400 sheets in a pack. The pack is then covered with a sleeve of sheepskin, placed on a granite anvil and beaten for half an hour with a hammer weighing 18 pounds. The blows are struck mostly in the center of the pack, causing the leaf to split and crack. By placing the blows of the hammer toward the outer edge of the pack during the last of the operation, the gold is welded together again, gold being one of the few metals that may be welded cold."

Between Goldbeater's Skins
"The sheets of gold are carefully removed, cut in quarters and then placed between goldbeater's skins, the skins being made in England from intestines of an ox. Before the gold is placed between the goldbeater's skins, a rabbit's foot is used in dusting the skins with a powder called brime. This pack, called the shoder, is beaten for two and one-half hours with a hammer weighing eight pounds."

"During the latter process, heat is generated, causing moisture to collect between the skins. If the moisture is not removed, the skins and gold disintegrate, so during the process the pack is examined, thumbed like one thumbs a book, and the moisture is blown out with the breath. Following this, the pack is placed in a press and heat is used to get rid of the remaining moisture. If the heating is done too rapidly, heat is generated and the gold and skins are ruined—and ruining would be disastrous, since intestines of 380 oxen are required to make the required number of skins for a pack."

Beaten Five Hours Longer
"The leaves of gold are again removed, divided into quarters and again placed between goldbeater's skins. This pack is known as the mould and is beaten for five hours with a hammer weighing six pounds. This stage of the beating requires much skill. If not hammered in the right spot with the proper blow, holes will be made in the leaf. When fully beaten, the leaf is so delicate that extraordinary skill is required to handle it. Women operators usually are employed in this phase of the process."

Closing his remarks with the statement that the desire to change the commoner materials into gold has fired the minds of men for centuries, Rowland said that "what the world needs today is not plentiful gold, but gold as found in the Golden Rule."

Present as a visitor from Whittier, the Rev. John Oliver, former pastor of the First Methodist church here and a former member of the local club, paid tribute to the late Dr. A. C. Zaiser, after the club had adopted a resolution of condolences to the family, on motion of O. H. Barr, Dr. Zaiser was a highly respected member of the club.

MAN ESCAPED FROM HOSPITAL IS RECAPTURED

Rafael Grajeda, 26, Orange county prisoner, who effected a daring escape from the Orange County hospital on the night of November 10, 1925, while confined in the tubercular ward, presumably in the last stages of the disease, was captured last night in a Mexican house at Talbert, by deputy sheriffs.

Grajeda is wanted here on a burglary charge in connection with the burglarizing of the Parsons store, Talbert, early last November. Guadalupe Grajeda, 28, also was arrested by officers and is being held in the county jail on a charge of aiding in an escape. Officers claim that this man attempted to shield the presence of Rafael Grajeda from them and attempted to effect an escape for the man.

Receiving a tip that Grajeda was at Talbert, Deputy Sheriffs Dan Adams, Jim Smith, H. W. McKague, E. E. French and Clyde Flower hurried to the town. They entered the house of Guadalupe Grajeda, who is alleged to have told the officers that the man they were seeking was at the house of his father, a short distance away. He offered to direct them to the place.

As several of the officers started away with Guadalupe Grajeda, McKague wandered around the house just in time to see the fugitive dash away from the house through a rear door. He was ordered to halt and was arrested. Officers then arrested Guadalupe and the two were brought to the county jail.

Rafael Grajeda was said to have been at the point of death soon after he was placed in the county jail here last November and, on doctors' orders, he was transferred to the county hospital. A futile search was made by a number of officers on the night that the man escaped.

It was learned by deputy sheriffs

SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA AS HUB FOR FAR EAST TRADE SEEN BY SHIPPING EXPERT

By A. V. NAPIER

"Much to our sorrow in the east, we must now recognize Southern California as the logical, ideal, exportation point for goods for the far east. It is known to be also the ideal field for the manufacture of goods for Oriental trade. The doctrine is spreading and within 10 years, probably less, the manufacturing industry of Southern California will astound even your most sanguine chamber of commerce boosters."

The above statement was made in a conversation yesterday by J. B. Meeman, of New York, freight traffic agent for the Barber Steamship company, one of the largest freight carriers operating out of Atlantic ports for the Orient. It was Meeman's opinion that every harbor development that is practicable would be needed to handle the shipping of the near future. He pointed out that American trade in the far east is increasing and that the demand for American goods by the Orientals is growing more widespread and insistent. He says that the future demand will be enormous.

Meeman also declares that the American goods demanded by the far east can be manufactured in Southern California to better advantage than in the New England states, and that there is a great saving in time and expense through shipping direct from Southern California, rather than carrying the goods through the Panama canal or around the Horn.

The shipping expert painted a verbal picture of Southern California, with Los Angeles harbor as the hub, as a vast manufacturing district for every conceivable commodity. He declared that a nationwide movement started nearly 10 years ago, and is rapidly gaining momentum, which will establish Southern California's supremacy as the general storehouse of the far east by 1935.

Meeman said, though eastern and middle western manufacturers were reluctant to recognize the fact, they are being compelled by the law of economic circumstances to establish factories, assembling plants and branch houses in Southern California. He pointed out that the Ford Motor company and other manufacturers in equally important lines have found it practical to establish plants on the coast. Steel, for instance, according to the shipping official, will rapidly develop into a west coast industry. He was referring to the unlimited supplies of ore in New Mexico. Meeman said it would be industrial suicide to ship the ore to Pittsburgh, manufacture it into pig iron and ship it back to the coast for transportation to the Orient where it is demanded.

"The inevitable working out of the law of economic adjustments is operating toward making Southern California a manufacturing empire that will soon surpass the greatest in the east," Meeman said. "Easterners wishing to compete for Oriental and South American trade must establish factories here or lose out in the shuffle."

The fact that shipping in Los Angeles harbor is already congested was pointed out by the Barber line's traffic expert. It is perfectly apparent, he said, that manufacturing in Southern California is on a sound and practical foundation, that the experimental stages have been passed and that every available harbor facility will be in demand as rapidly as they can be developed.

OFFICERS ARE NOMINATED BY CONTRACTORS

Melville Dozier, manager of the Southern California office of the Associated General Contractors of America, spoke at the meeting of the Orange County Builders' exchange Tuesday night at Orange on the subject of co-operation necessary between the exchange and the Associated General Contractors to obtain sufficient representation in legislative bodies to enact regulations for the betterment of the construction industry.

Dozier traced the history of both organizations and brought out the similarity between the two. Some of the projects now being worked on by the Associated General Contractors of America include accident insurance for workers, safety schools, one of which is being conducted at present in the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce building; licensing of the contractor, the problem of too low bids, income taxes, advocacy of a United States department of public work and standardization and analysis of highway specifications.

The meeting started with a 6:30 o'clock dinner served by the Rebekahs. Solos were sung by Maurice Phillips and A. C. McGowan. Following Dozier's address, Lawrence King presented a two-reel lumber picture.

Officers were nominated and a discussion held on a resolution being framed for presentation to the Santa Ana board of trustees. This resolution asks that the board enact legislation requiring that all building plans be checked. Three days would elapse from the time of filing the application with complete plans and specifications, together with names of owner and agent and a legal description, before the permit would be granted. Copies of the resolution and an accompanying letter will be delivered to each member of the exchange for consideration. Action on the matter will be taken at the next meeting.

Officers nominated are as follows: President, Jules W. Markell and George Rogers; vice president, W. J. Kelly and George Barrows; secretary, Walter Hammond and Bill Tway; treasurer, Wilbur Barr and S. D. Heckart; directors, O. T. Moore, Norman Lentz, George Rogers, Walter Wright, Charles Dahlen, R. R. Lutes, Bill Yeager, George Masters, E. A. Noe, Wilbur Getty, A. C. McGowan, John Ross, E. E. Patmore, F. R. Sargent, H. A. Lake and M. E. Beebe.

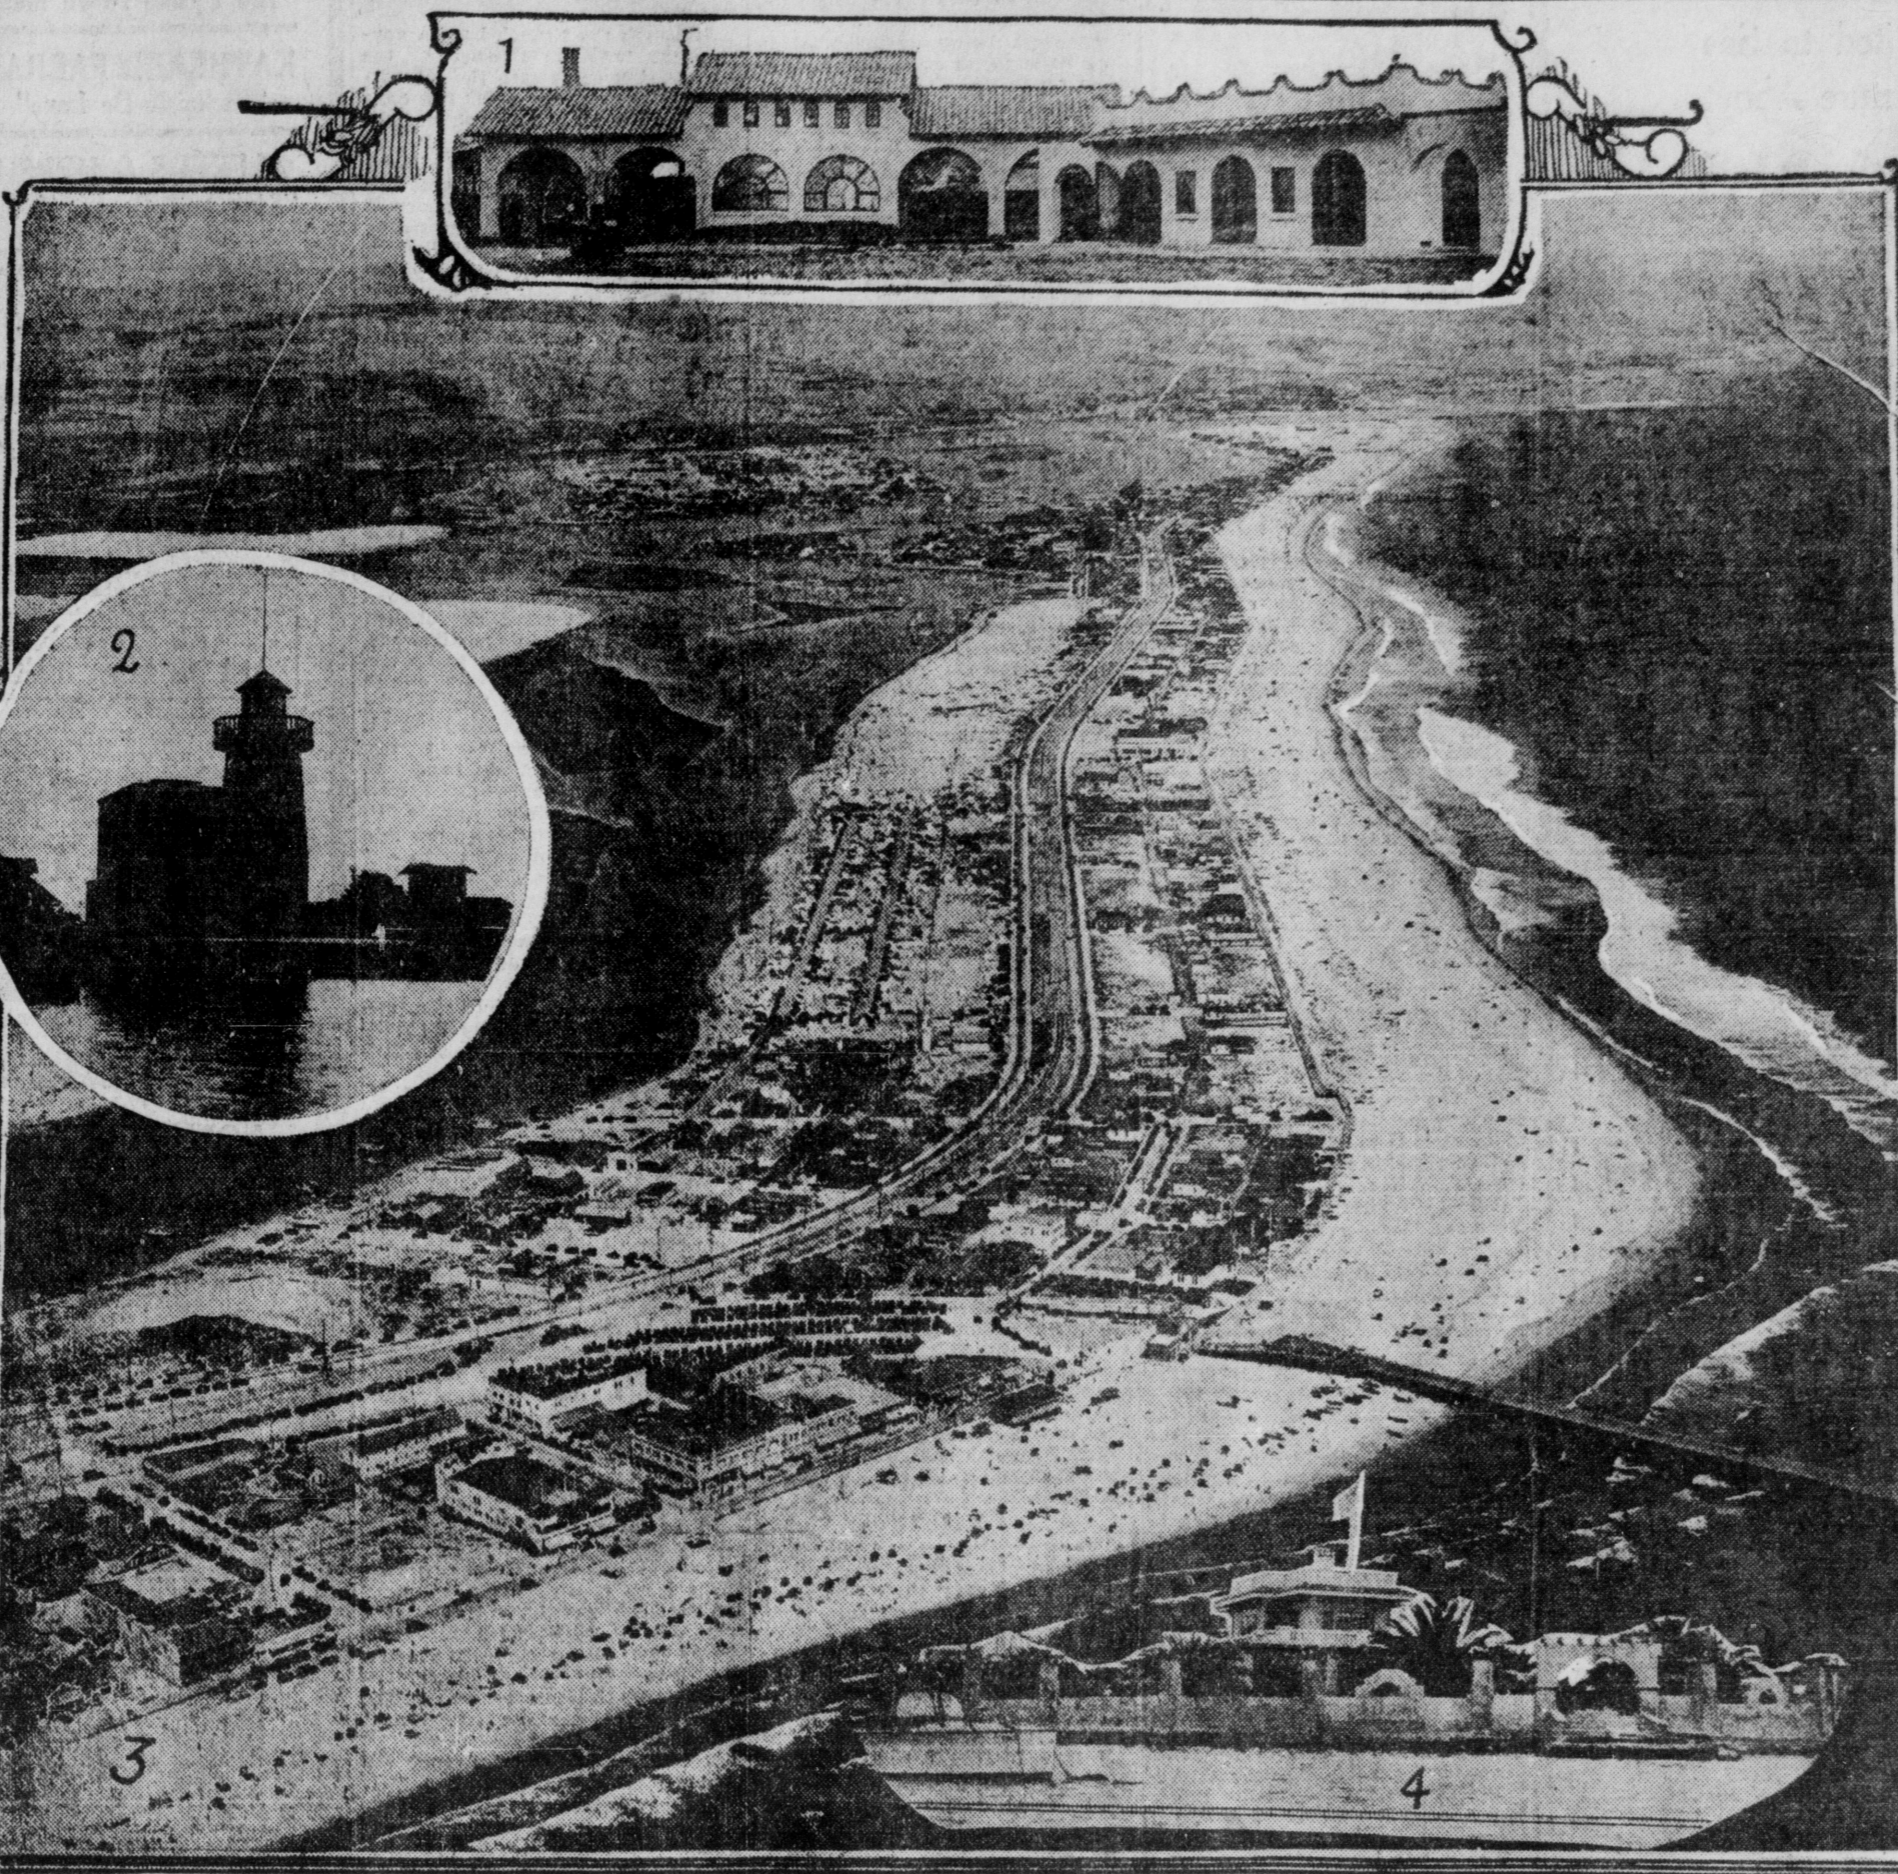

Votes will be cast by mail before April 27.

McFADDEN HARDWARE COMPANY, CROOKSHANK AND SWALES BUY NORTH MAIN STREET PROPERTIES FOR TOTAL OF $115,000

Two pieces of North Main street business property are involved in negotiations being completed today, the deals representing an investment of $115,000.

The McFadden Hardware company has purchased from Pauline Reinhaus, at a reported consideration of $85,000, the business property at 413 North Main street, at present occupied by the Swales-

McFadden Insurance company, and other concerns. The lot has a frontage of 25 feet.

C. S. Crookshank and Len Swales have bought the business property at 409 North Main street, occupied by the Flower shop, for $50,000. The frontage is 22½ feet.

The sale of these properties follows closely on the purchase by the Orange County Title company of the Menges estate holdings on the southeast corner of Fifth and Main streets for $165,000, and the sale by the Menges estate of the property occupied by the Orange County Title company to C. E. Parker and H. A. Gardner for $50,000, the frontage being 25 feet.

The front foot price paid by McFadden and by Crookshank and Swales is higher than was paid for the other pieces.

Crookshank and Swales in the immediate future will make some alterations in the Flower shop location, lowering the floor and remodeling the front.

Admitting today that the McFadden Hardware company has under consideration leasing of its business rooms at 111-13 East Fourth street to a large store concern, E. T. McFadden said that purchase of the Reinhaus property was not made with a view to giving a Main street outlet to the firm negotiating for a lease for the East Fourth street location. The prospective leasing firm is not represented here. McFadden said it was possible lease negotiations may be completed in the next week or 10 days.

The Goble Sign studio, located for the past three years at First and Broadway, adjoining the Grand Central market, is occupying its new and permanent home at 2640 North Main street, upon property recently purchased from R. L. Bisby. A studio and office building, 20x70 feet, has been erected and in addition, it is planned to paint the larger bulletins outdoors, a privilege that only Southern California affords. There is already a four-room house upon the property and later, this will be occupied by the Goble family, after necessary enlargements and improvements have been made.

The Flanders Sales company, distributors of the Flanders portable car door sign pad, now being manufactured in Santa Ana, also occupies quarters on the Goble property, which is located just north of the Santiago creek bridge. Twelve people are now employed by the two firms.

EXPECT 10,000 AT FUR PLANT OPENING

Ten thousand people are expected to attend the opening of the Santa Ana branch of the Golden West Fur farms, Sunday. It was stated today by G. U. Carter, manager.

Twenty thousand invitations to the opening have been sent to residents of Orange, Los Angeles and Riverside counties. Those invited include chamber of commerce heads, city officials and numerous prominent citizens in the three counties, Carter says.

The new plant, which is situated on North Main street at the Orange city limits, will be open for public inspection from 11 a. m. to 5 p. m. Speakers will include Charles S. Gibson and Andrew M. Stodel, both national rabbit show judges; M. W. Meek, of Arcadia, president of the fur company, and an official of the Compton chamber of commerce. It will be the aim of the speakers to impart authentic information regarding the rabbit industry and all interested in the subject, regardless of whether they have received an invitation, are invited to be present, Carter states.

The local plant is situated on a 2-acre site and cost approximately $35,000. It includes breeding quarters, killing plant, fur manufacturing rooms, sales room and residence for the manager. One thousand rabbits will be kept at the plant.

At the opening Sunday, models will exhibit the latest in fur coats.

According to Carter, the company's second Orange county plant will be established at Fullerton, in the near future. The site is in the Lansdowne tract. It will be in the nature of a demonstration farm. The company is establishing other plants in Long Beach, Azusa and San Fernando.

The temporary Garden Grove branch of the Golden West concern has been given up now that the Santa Ana branch is completed and all business formerly transacted at Garden Grove will be handled here from now on, Carter states.

New $350,000 Water System Nearing Completion; Shipping Revival Is Seen

Newport Beach, the queen of Orange county beaches, is rapidly becoming one of the most popular pleasure resorts on the Southern California coast. Pleasure seekers at Newport Beach are of a distinctive class, mostly wealthy persons seeking quiet recreation, where they may sail their yachts and enjoy excellent fishing and social functions. All of these things are available at Newport Beach.

Stretching along the coast of Orange county for more than six miles, the city of Newport Beach owns one of the most prized sections of ocean front to be found anywhere. Comprised of three separate sections, and with the bay for a "back yard," the town offers a version of almost any kind to the staid merchant or city business man who wishes a short vacation or a summer home.

Advantages Recognized During the past few years, citizens of inland communities have recognized the many natural advantages of a summer home at Newport Beach and much property in the section has been purchased by wealthy business men of the interior country.

Newport Beach consists of three communities, Corona Del Mar, Balboa and Newport. Corona Del Mar, a high, rugged section of land, forms the eastern end of the town. The coast line of Corona Del Mar is one of the most beautiful in Southern California, with high cliffs and rocks and short open spaces of sandy beach, ideal for swimming. It is between Corona Del Mar and the Balboa peninsula that the entrance to the bay is located.

$500,000 For Homes Across the entrance to the bay lies Balboa peninsula and Balboa. Many wealthy people have purchased lots in the Balboa district and during the past two years, it is estimated that nearly $500,000 has been spent on fine beach homes in this section of the town alone.

The development of Orange county harbor is one of the premier issues today before the people of the district. With plans under way to dredge the entrance to the harbor deeper and to erect a breakwater and wharves, old time seafaring men at Newport are once again vis-

Yes, baldpate is locked, and if you unlock it, the hair can get out.

In other words, and coming down to cases, in nine bald heads out of ten, the hair roots are not dead, but simply locked in, or imprisoned by caked dandruff and hardened oil, which has stopped up the hair canals, preventing the tender young hair from coming up, and gradually suffocating the hair roots to death. If your baldness is not of long duration, or if you are just in the process of acquiring that doubtful distinction,

Stage and Screen

Mrs. Rudolph Valentino in a scene from "When Love Grows Cold," current attraction at the West Coast-Walker.

WEST COAST-WALKER

The flaring personality of Natacha Rambova (Mrs. Rudolph Valentino); the bizarre loveliness of her attire and the superb beauty and grace of her face and figure are an optional treat of strong allurements in her first starring vehicle, "When Love Grows Cold," which is providing many thrills for both men and women at the West Coast-Walker theater.

While it has been described as being essentially a woman's picture with its stirring appeal to feminine tastes by reason of its lavish gowns and settings, Mrs. Valentino's production is of such abounding universal interest that persons of both sexes are acclaiming it.

From the pen of Laura Jean Libbey, loved by millions for reason of her many great novels of another day, "When Love Grows Cold" is a domestic drama of warm human appeal. The story is an epic of the nobility of a good woman's soul. As the loyal and dutiful wife who cumulated wealth only to find that riches will send him to his doom, she gives a truly stirring performance, according to many of the foremost critics who have already given the production their seal of approval.

On the stage Nick Cogley and company present "Old Reliable" and "The Striped Man." Others on the bill are: Bernard Carmen in "The Upside Down Man"; Katherine Farrar in "Violiniste De Luxe"; Alfreds and Hersh in "King and Queen of the Blues"; and the Acme Four in "That Versatile Four."

Movie Chatterbox

A new brand of sheik—the intellectual lover—is supplanting the Latin or Spanish origin, is gradually being pushed into the realm of the discarded screen heroes, according to the feminine movie-maker.

The Valentino mold of heart-crusher, as personified by Rudolph himself, and scores of imitators, of Latin or Spanish origin, is gradually being pushed into the realm of the discarded screen heroes, according to the feminine movie-maker.

"Look over the array of male stars who are in the ascendant today," said Miss Fairfax, in an interview today, "and you will find the mental type now dominating."

"Outstanding examples are Lewis Stone, Ronald Colman and John Gilbert."

The screen hero with sheer "sex-appeal" is losing favor with the fans, contends the woman producer. "It all goes to prove that, after all, women love the same thing—strength," she continued. "And of strength, mental virility is the strongest, because it dominates all other forms."

"Many women worship physical strength in a man. She may fear him, and at times hate him, yet she loves him."

The girls and women who have been responsible for the popularity of the conventional film sheik love physical strength because of its aesthetic quality, which in the movies we call sex appeal.

"There is, too, a rarer type which loves the man for the sense of strength or rather protection implied by his wealth or his willingness to provide for her. Psychoanalysts ascribe this to infantile causes."

"But the strongest of the strong is the mental type—the man with the strength of mind. He is the man who commands the world and commands the hearts of the majority of women."

"He is a quiet, reserved manner, but in his face is written a firmness and power that carries the conviction of ability to rise above storms and crises."

"He may have a fiery spirit—a spirited temperament belongs as much to the mental lover as the one whose fore-runner goes back to the days when men wooed with clubs."

Corinne Griffith is fifth in "Mile Modiste," adapted to the screen from the popular musical comedy written by Blossom Jones and Victor Herbert. Corinne handles the tough customers when all else fails.

This First National picture, which was directed by Robert Z. Leonard, will be an early release. The cast in support of Miss Griffith includes Norman Kerry, Rose Dione, Willard Louis, Dorothy Cummings, Paulette Goddard, and Tony Merlo.

YOST THEATER

Reginald Denny has done it again! "Skinner's Dress Suit," now showing at the Yost theater, is a clean and plausible comedy which ranks with the best work he has ever done. It is the uproariously funny story of a suburban couple, who spend more money than they earn, the consequences of this extravagance are laughable in the extreme.

"Honey" is adored by his feather-brained wife who thinks him a financial giant. She makes him ask for a raise in salary which he does not get. He does not dare disappoint her so tells her that he did get the raise, then the fun begins. They start being somebody in their little social swim, and have to dress up to it.

"Honey" Skinner has to buy a dress suit, and that is only the beginning of the end. Denny is as poor, embarrassed "Honey" is as droll as can be imagined, and while you are laughing at him you are also sympathizing with him in his various predicaments.

Laura La Plante as the fluffy little spendthrift of a wife could not be excelled in the part; she is a comedienne of the very highest order in this portrayal of the harmlessly vain little suburban social climber.

WEST END THEATER

Robert G. Vignola, celebrated director, is responsible for "Fifth Avenue," a splendid picture featuring Marguerite De La Motte and Allan Forrest which is at the West End theater.

"Bob" Vignola joined a theatrical stock company at seventeen years of age and later appeared in Shakespearean repertoire. Two other members of this company were Sidney Olcott and George Melford, the three future directors making their entry into motion pictures together.

Later, they were members of the Kalem Company's first globe-trotting producing unit, making pictures in Europe, the British Isles, and the Holy Land. Vignola gained his first directorial experience with this company, with which he remained for seven years. Since that time, he has directed many of the outstanding successes of recent years, including "When Knighthood Was in Flower," "Yolanda," "Adam and Eva," "The Passionate Pilgrim," "Married Flirts" and "De-classe."

Jazz is the Omnipotent tune now rushing the sinners down the sawdust trail in Hollywood and Los Angeles. Most of the so-called up-to-date churches have replaced their old-fashioned pipe organs with Charleston jazz orchestras. Rev. Frank Dyer of the fashionable Wilshire Congregational church started the vogue.

The vaccinating season is now on in Hollywood and film girls are having a perplexing time finding support for their anatomies which won't present the scar to public view.

An old-fashioned girl in film-land is one who gets vaccinated on her thigh.

Natalie Keaton, symmetrical 36, who was fast gaining fame as a comedienne on the Mack Sennett lot, recently refused to renew her comedy contract and decided to go into heavy drama. She convinced the Paramount company she was a good bet and was placed under contract. She has made three pictures since making the new affidavit—all of them have been comedies.

A Hollywood producer tried to make a speech over a radio the other night and failed because his hands couldn't be seen.

"Well, I wish you could change the names of authors on stories like you change their titles," lamented a film producer.

"I have a story by you man but would be a lot better if Sinclair Lewis' name was on it."

"Few motion picture stars ever accumulate wealth despite the fabulous salaries they receive. With few exceptions most of them die on the verge of pauperism. Barbara La Marr, who during her lifetime enjoyed all luxuries, left only a few hundred dollars when death came."

And why? Because nearly all of them live far beyond their salaries. It is the common fallacy to spend just a few hundred above the pay limit. Thus, movie marionettes are forever keeping their feet wet in debt.

Ramona Sharp, film actress, is suing some film heads because she sat down on an electrically wired chair while on their studio set, causing a "severe shock to her dignity." Miss Sharp escaped easily. I remember when I sat down on one, shocking a great deal more than my dignity.

DRUSE FORCES
PROVE MENACE
TO FRENCHMEN

BEIRUT, April 8.—In Syria, people seem to have forgotten that there are such things as public security and law and order. Public confidence in the government is gone, inasmuch as the government, after six months, is still unable to police the short line of road and railway connecting Beirut and Damascus.

Although the French have a garrison of 10,000 in Damascus, the Druses still come into the city almost daily. Within the last few days a train has been wrecked on the Beirut-Damascus line and all the passengers deprived of their clothes and money. In Damascus itself the people, being unarmed and at the mercy of both the troops and the Druses, have settled down to carrying on their ordinary occupations in the best way they can.

French seem to be doing little or nothing. They have not yet admitted that the trouble is serious; consequently the French troops, who alone are capable of settling the situation, are kept in the background, and the fighting is done by the Moors and other "Blackfellows," whose names don't have to appear in the casualty lists in France.

Meanwhile the Druses are conducting their campaign with considerable skill. They have divided their fighting men into small bands, generally not more than 25 apiece, and they calculate that each one of these is capable, with luck and in suitable country, of keeping busy a battalion of government troops. Should an individual band be caught or wiped out—only 25 men have been lost. They appear to have plenty of arms and ammunition. They are using only rifles, and all artillery and machine-guns captured by them they destroy. They have, within limits, a large potential area for recruitment, their system being to come down on individual villages.

The men, taken by surprise, usually join their ranks, and that village is thereafter compromised and forced to take their side.

They have solved their medical problem by the ingenious method of kidnapping doctors in the villages and towns and forcing them to serve in their ranks. Several well-known Damascus doctors have been kidnapped in this way. Altogether their "High Command" is not lacking in ideas, and, as they possess a small body of university-trained men of their own, they are not lacking in scientific advice.

This is the most amusing side of the situation. The other is represented by the loss in industry and trade; the fields going out of cultivation, the steadily growing stream of refugees, the absence of the usual heavy and profitable winter tourist traffic, and, worst of all, the growing contempt for the government and for the mentality of European politicians that make such a situation possible.

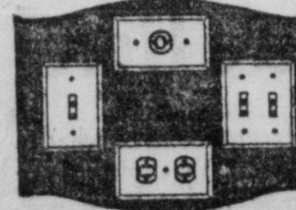

The Arab government after the war did at least keep moderate order; but it was destroyed by the mandatory power while the League of Nations, nominally the sovereign of the country, looked on.

Admirers and supporters of the league can hardly blame the Syrians for calling it rude names. Under the covenant, as people living under a class A mandate, the Syrians were promised a choice of the mandatory power; that promise was broken. They were promised conditions of stability and law and order guaranteed by the presence of a European power; yet for five years the country has been in a state of continual unrest, and for the last six months one of the three leading cities has been cut off from the rest of the country by bands of rebels which the government has shown no ability to put down.

MILLIONS ARE EXPENDED FOR BEACH HOMES

utilizing the days when Newport was a port seething with activity, when boats rode majestically into the harbor and tied to a wharf at Port Orange, and when boats were three and four abreast of the Newport pier, awaiting their chance to unload.

Yachtsmen Like Bay

Yachtsmen from all parts of the Pacific coast are recognizing the many advantages of Newport bay as a pleasure bay and, according to a recent survey, there is at the present time nearly a million dollars represented in pleasure yachts, cruisers and sail boats on the bay. Six boating clubs have decided upon Newport bay as an ideal location and have established headquarters on the bay and, according to reports, other clubs are considering locations in the district. Several of the yachting organizations on the bay are ranked among the leading organizations of their kind in the United States.

Forward steps have been taken during the past few years, not only in home building but in public improvements. Construction work is now being completed on the $350,000 municipal water system. A paving campaign, which has resulted in practically every street in the town being paved, has been completed. Voters of the district will voice their sentiments on a $100,000 bond issue to provide fire-fighting equipment on April 12. Electric lighting systems and other improvements, amounting to more than $1,000,000, have been made during the past three years in Newport Beach.

Fish Are Plentiful

Fishermen ply their trade at Newport Beach with perhaps more success than do other fishermen at other ports along the Pacific.

Because of the calm water and the deep channel which runs close to the shore at Newport, fishermen are enabled to fish with only a row boat to take them to and from their lines and nets. Many fishing boats make Newport bay their home port and every year, tons of fish are caught by Newport Beach fishermen.

Boat manufacturers and repair shops are prosperous at Newport Beach. Nearly a dozen different companies are in business on the bay front and at almost any time, the ways and docks are filled with boats to be repainted or repaired. What is said to be the only canoe manufacturing plant west of the Mississippi river is located at Newport Beach.

Boat Harbor Bonds

Civic organizations of the town are boosting for the harbor bond issue of $1,500,000, which probably will come before voters of the county early this summer. Already $500,000 has been spent in harbor development and much has been accomplished. The course of the Santa Ana river has been diverted into a new channel and the waters of the river no longer carry silt and dirt into the bay; channels have been dredged in the bay and a breakwater has been constructed at the right entrance to the bay.

Harbor boosters declare the bond issue will enable further dredging at the entrance to the bay to allow larger ships to enter. It will also provide for deeper channels and turning basins in the harbor and provide for the construction of a new jetty at the left of the harbor entrance and the repair of the right jetty. Many of the leading marine engineers of the United States have visited Newport bay and have declared it a natural harbor.

Many years ago, the bay was indeed a harbor and traces of the old wharf at Port Orange, located at the foot of the steps leading down from the Orange County Country club, may still be seen at low tide.

Horses Bother Farmers

The history of Newport Beach is indeed interesting. In 1867, a few people settled in what was then known as "Gospel Swamp" near Santa Ana. Among the settlers was James McFadden, an uncle of E. T. McFadden, who is a member of the Orange county harbor commission.

According to notes of old time residents, the country at the time the first settlers arrived was overrun with wild horses. Settlers in the district had no way to protect their crops from the bands of wild horses, as there were no trees in the country large enough to be made into fences.

McFadden Ships Lumber
James McFadden decided that lumber was needed, so made a trip north and brought into Newport bay the first boat load of lumber ever landed there. The steamer "Newport" brought the first cargo of lumber.

Settlers, hearing of the lumber, harnessed their ox teams and drove to what was soon to be known as Port Orange. The lumber enabled them to build fences and protect their property. This one shipment of lumber was to prove the first of a prosperous industry which later provided nearly all the lumber used in building Santa Ana, Riverside and other towns.

Ship Products South

A year after the settlers had located at "Gospel Swamp," trade relations were established with San Diego. Farmers in the swamp grew a great amount of potatoes, pumpkins, corn and other farm products but had no market for them. A ship captain at San Diego, Capt. E. J. Abbott, learned of the fresh vegetables, and with his boat, the "Valero," steamed into Newport bay and returned to San Diego with a much needed supply of food. Capt. Abbott continued to make regular trips to Newport bay for the farm products.

The shipments were all from a point on the bay near where the Orange County Country club now stands, and it was then known as Port Orange or "Puerto Viejo" (Old Port). Boats entered and left the bay at high tide only. According to reports from old timers in the harbor district, the water in the channels of the bay were at that time about 40 feet in depth. The channels were later filled with silt and dirt brought down by the Santa Ana river.

In 1872, a regular service was established between Newport bay and San Francisco by the steamers "Mose" and "Susie." The two boats were owned by John Hooper, of San Francisco, and brought much of the lumber from the northern part of the state. Hooper brought much of the lumber from Humboldt.

Deck, Warehouse Built

A year later, a dock and warehouse was built at Port Orange. A freight service was established between Port Orange and Salt Lake City, and Silver City, New Mexico, oxen being used.

The first coastal survey was made off the coast of Newport Beach in 1887 and it was then that the submarine channel, running close to shore, was discovered. It was decided to build a pier into the channel, as the river was rapidly filling up the channels in the bay and also because the entrance must be made at high tide. The pier was built in 1888.

This was the forming of Newport Beach and caused the name of Newport or "Puerto Nuevo," to be attached to the district near the wharf. From that time, people who lived at Santa Ana, when visiting the bay, specified just where they were going, either to Puerto Viejo, the old port, or Puerto Nuevo, Newport.

Railroad Constructed

In 1890, the first railroad was built into Newport Beach. It came from Santa Ana and ran out onto the pier. Lumber and other merchandise brought to the pier was chandised brought to the pier directly to Santa Ana, where the line connected with the Santa Fe railroad. McFadden was the main promoter of the project and was the owner of the railroad until in 1898, when the line was purchased by the Southern Pacific railroad.

In 1906, the last lumber schooner docked at Newport Pier and unloaded.

Meanwhile, development had been going on in the Newport section. The E. J. Abbott, E. E. Keach and C. Andres families, as well as several others, located at Balboa between what is now Palm avenue and the Balboa pavilion.

Pays $10,500 For Tract

George Peabody, president of the Orange County Harbor Chamber of Commerce, and prominent harbor booster, purchased 18 1/2 acres of land where Balboa now stands, in 1902. Peabody paid $10,500 for the entire 18 1/2 acres. Today, the land is worth many hundreds of thousands of dollars. A year later, Peabody sold the land to a company organized by Frank Beckwith, J. P. Greeley, F. H. Harding, Mr. Chamberlain and others.

The company started improvement of the land at once. One of the first real improvements was the installation of dirt roads on the sand pit. Previous to that time, residents of the Balboa district had hauled straw to the beach each year and made a straw road through the sand. The dirt roads were looked upon as a great improvement.

In 1905, the Pacific Electric railroad came into Newport and Balboa.

In 1908, a group of men formed another company and established East Newport. Then, with two communities started on the eastern end of the sand peninsula, growth became rapid.

For many years, the town of Old Newport was owned by the McFadden interests. In 1902, McFadden sold most of his possessions in the town to W. S. Collins, of Riverside. Collins immediately subdivided the property.

Harbor Survey Made
In 1907, the three subdivisions on peninsula were prospering nicely and the first harbor survey was made by a government engineer, McKinstry. The towns continued to grow and in 1912, another harbor survey was made.

In 1917, the first harbor work was done, the jetty was built and the course of the Santa Ana river was diverted through a new outlet. From that time on, the development of the harbor district has been rapid. Costa Mesa, at the gateway to the harbor, has grown rapidly. Wealthy inland people have recognized Newport and Balboa as unexcelled places for summer homes and each year sees more than $500,000 invested in new homes and business buildings in the district.

Corona Del Mar Booms

Corona Del Mar is experiencing a boom at the present time. A large number of new homes are being built on the beautiful rolling hills that overlook the ocean. Paved roads are being built throughout the district and a fine water system has been installed. The construction

APPOINT 2 EDISON VICE PRESIDENTS

R. H. Ballard, executive vice president and general manager of the Southern California Edison company, today announced the appointment of two assistant vice presidents. They are Charles Heston Peirson, who entered the service of the Edison Electric company, predecessor of the present organization, about 20 years ago, as advertising manager, and Will H. Fischer, for some time past manager of the greater service department, which contacts with the 227,000 consumers, which has come to be more of an executive than an administrative office. Mr. Peirson and Mr. Fischer are both old-time newspapermen.

Charlie Peirson, as he is best known, is among the oldest professional writers in America, having commenced when a boy of 14 as a water front reporter in New York city, and is now in his 67th year. He came to the service of John E. Miller after long experience in editorial and executive positions in the general offices of the Associated Press in New York city, and with metropolitan papers in the east.

He is best known to the newspaper publishers as the originator of the Edison plan of display advertising, which has been very generally adopted and standardized by the larger public utilities of the country and is being amplified in many ways by Richard E. Smith, his successor.

Will H. Fischer began his career as a newspaper reporter in San Francisco 27 years ago. He was employed in various capacities, as reporter, editorial and feature writer on several papers of that city. He was perhaps best known as a reporter of national conventions, and wrote the stories of the nomination of Roosevelt, of Taft, and of Harding, who were elected, and of Parker, who was defeated. He was for some time editor and manager of the Humboldt Times, of Eureka; later an editorial writer on Los Angeles papers. Previous to joining the forces of the Edison company, he was engaged in tax research work and was well known as a writer on these and other economic subjects.

tion of the coast highway through Corona Del Mar and along the shores of the bay is also expected to bring many new people into the section during the year.

Oil is also a factor in the development of Newport Beach. During the past few years, a heavy oil has been found near the bluff back of Newport Beach and one of the latest industries to announce intention of locating in Newport is a plant which will produce motor oils, roofing paint and sprays.

The sections of Newport Beach, Corona Del Mar, Balboa and East Newport were formed into one town, known as Newport Beach, a few years ago.

AMERICAN LEGION NATIONAL ADJUTANT TO BE PRESENT AT MEETING OF SANTA ANA POST

Members of Santa Ana post, No. 131, American Legion, together with legionnaires throughout the county, today were looking forward to their meeting with Joseph Barton, national adjutant, who will be a guest of the Santa Ana post tomorrow, at a luncheon, to be served by the American Legion auxiliary, in the Legion home, on Birch street.

Legion men from all parts of the county are expected to attend the luncheon and many special invitations have been issued by the post, including invitations to the presidents of all Santa Ana luncheon clubs and other organizations.

Adjutant Barton is visiting the California Legion posts in the interests of the American Legion Endowment fund, and doubtless will make a short address on the subject, according to a statement made today by Elmer Schanels, Santa Ana post adjutant.

Enlisted in Iowa, Barton, a native of Wisconsin, enlisted within 10 days after the United States entered the World war and served in this country and in France until August, 1919. He enlisted in Iowa, going into the army at Fort Dodge, where he had lived a number of years prior to the declaration of war.

The national adjutant is considered one of the most able men in the American Legion and, prior to the war, was educated as a lawyer. During the first year after the war, he served as commander of the Fort Dodge post of the American Legion and for five years as adjutant of the American Legion, department of Iowa. He has been national adjutant since last August.

Leonard Wilson, commander of the Los Angeles county council of the American Legion, together with James K. Fisk, California state adjutant, and several other state officers, will accompany the national adjutant to Santa Ana, it was said.

Expect Big Attendance. An effort will be made by the Santa Ana post to have an unusually large number of members present at the meeting and luncheon to meet the official and to show them that, in Santa Ana, there exists one of the largest posts in the entire state, Schanels said.

The first regular meeting of the Santa Ana post for the month of April will be held tonight, in the Legion hall. The meeting will begin with a dinner, to be served at 8:30 by the auxiliary.

Chief among the discussions and business to come before the post tonight will be final plans for the Boy Scout jamboree, to be held Friday, in which the American Legion is taking much interest. Although the 40 and 8 society is sponsoring the parade and other features of the event, the Legion, together with other Santa Ana clubs, is aiding.

Several rounds of boxing are announced for the entertainment for the evening. The names of the boxers have been withheld upon request, but it was announced that several fast rounds by the heaviest of heavyweights could be expected.

National adjutant of American Legion, who will attend a luncheon and meeting here, tomorrow, of the Santa Ana Legion post. Legionnaires from throughout the county are expected to be present.

RAIL COMPANY WINS VICTORY OVER WIDOWS

The Pacific Electric Railway company won a victory in its court battle with the widows of James T. McGuffin and Elwood Baldwin, who were killed in a La Habra crossing accident, a jury late yesterday denying the claims of Mrs. Baldwin and Mrs. McGuffin for $50,000 damages.

The trial occupied three days in Superior Judge Z. B. West's court, where the verdict in favor of the railroad company was returned at about 2:45 p. m. The jury had been out less than half an hour.

Evidence in the case showed that McGuffin, driving the car, had failed to stop at the railroad crossing, his car smashing through lowered gates, upon which red lights were burning, and rolling on the track in front of an approaching electric car. Other motorists had stopped at the crossing.

Attorneys for the Pacific Electric had argued to the jury that there was nothing in the damage case except sympathy for the widows.

The widows took their defeat calmly. As the jury's verdict was read, they sat with unmoved countenances for a moment, then rose from their seats and passed silently from the courtroom. In the corridor they stopped to converse briefly in low tones, then shook hands and parted.

"Luck to you," each remarked over her shoulder.

L. A. County At Head of List In Milk Fat Output

SACRAMENTO, April 8. — Los Angeles county crowded Stanislaus county from first place during 1925 in milk fat production, figures released by G. H. Hecke, state director of agriculture, show. Merced attained a greater total production than Stanislaus county, which had held a position of dairy leadership for more than 20 years.

Production for the entire state was 126,231,637 pounds in 1925, compared with 125,274,369 pounds in 1924, or an increase of 957,268 pounds.

The five leading counties in total production were Los Angeles, 13,403,155 pounds; Merced, 8,882,891 pounds; Stanislaus, 9,103,678 pounds; Tulare, 7,173,299 pounds, and Humboldt, 7,150,632 pounds.

San Francisco led in the manufacture of butter, with 7,866,772 pounds. Butter production for the entire state dropped from 78,562,263 pounds in 1924 to 72,226,247 pounds last year, while market milk totaled 100,210,842 gallons in 1925 as against 92,470,430 for 1924.

Long Beach Fire Department War May Start Anew

Dissension among the city firemen of Long Beach, which resulted in the suicide, several weeks ago, in Orange County park, of Battalion Chief Jay Taylor and the sudden retirement of the chief, C. C. Craw, may break out again, according to a dispatch today from the beach city.

Fuel was added to the flames yesterday, when Capt. Joel Haffner, in command of the North Long Beach fire station, returned to duty after a long illness.

Members of the company on duty at that station, it was reported, have shown considerable ill feeling over the return of the captain to that station, the resentment growing out of the factional fight existing for some time, it was said.

Captain Haffner requested a transfer to another station because of the resentment of the men toward him, the dispatch continued.

Exchangeites Are Guest of Theater

Members of the Santa Ana Exchange club were guests, last night, of Mr. and Mrs. Don Juden, at Yost's theater, Mr. Juden being manager of the West End theater, one of the amusement houses controlled by E. D. Yost. A section of seats in the house was reserved for the party. Charles Swanner, former president of the club, and Floyd Croddy, president, were made the butt of jokes "shot" by the vaudeville actors.

BUILDERS' QUERIES ANSWERED

By Southern California Chapter, Associated General Contractors of America

Q. I have been advised there has recently been placed on the market a metal stud which can be used successfully in the construction of a small home. Will you please advise if this is correct?

A. You have been correctly informed. If you will visit the exhibit in the basement of the Chamber of Commerce building, Los Angeles, the steel stud may be seen, as well as the method employed in fastening the metal lath thereon.

Q. Will you please tell me how long it will take to pay off a trust deed of $2150 at $35 per month, including interest at 7 per cent?

A. The time required will be 10 years.

Q. Will you please advise if it is common practice to use metal lath for dwelling house construction, and if it is advisable to do so?

A. We cannot say that it is a common practice to use metal lath for dwelling house construction. However, it is quite extensively used for this purpose. Metal lath reduces the fire hazard, as well as providing a very substantial wall less subject to fine cracks in the plaster.

Q. Will you please advise me what it will cost per square foot to erect a one-room house 14 by 16 feet in size, one that may be used for a home?

A. The cost of erecting a California house will average between $17.50 and $23.50 per square foot, depending entirely upon the class of materials used and the finish. The state law provides, however, that the same room must not be used for both sleeping purposes and a kitchen.

Q. Is it practical to put red cedar shingles over old shingles, in renewing the roof of a barn, or is it advisable to remove the old shingles?

A. It has been considered impractical to apply new shingles over old. However, an experiment has just been made that justifies the statement that new shingles can be placed over old shingles successfully. While re-roofing without removing the old shingles has been carried on extensively, the last few years have seen many homes in the east renewed in this way.

LENHARD LANDSCAPE PAINTINGS POPULAR

Proclaiming in vivid colors the natural beauties of Orange county and made a subject of much favorable comment in Los Angeles art circles and among gallery visitors is a collection of paintings by Walsley Lenhard, now on exhibition in the Ainslee galleries, Los Angeles.

Lenhard's landscapes, all taken from different points in Orange county, according to art critics, are more than portraits of place—they reflect the spirit of the place.

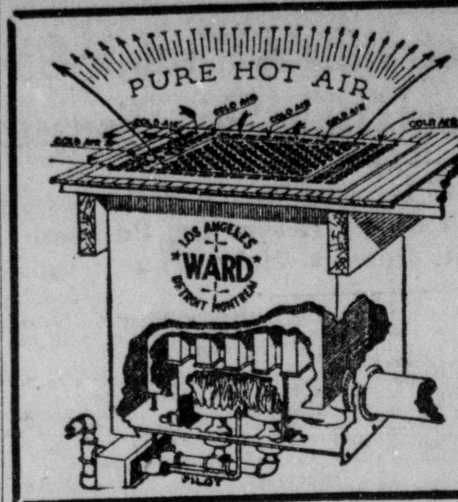

The collection includes a wide range of subjects. Among those listed in the catalogue are a portrait of Adolph Tandler; Arches, San Juan Capistrano; Indian Boy; Bouganville, San Juan Capistrano; View from Fisherman's Cove, Laguna Beach; Orange Trees in a Garden; Ruins, Old Church, Capistrano; Boats, Balboa Bay; Triple Arch, San Juan Capistrano; Mission and Poinsettia, and Sycamore Trees.

Lenhard came into the spotlight last year, when, siding with his wife, Eva Jones Lenhard, he resisted the efforts of his wife's parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. Wilton Jones, of New Orleans, to surrender the custody of Mrs. Lenhard's daughter of a former marriage.

S. A. INVITATION GOLF TOURNEY DATE SET

A lot of Santa Ana baseball followers who never concerned themselves in Portland more than to hear from time to time that the club was still in the Pacific Coast league are going to be "holding everything" for the Beavers this summer.

Ernie Johnson, a full fledged Laguna Beach resident, an Orange county booster and an all-around good fellow, is managing the Oregon entry now and he is making all the old-timers here turn Portland fans.

Johnson can make any ball team hustle and when he has a good club, like the one he's handling this season, the hustle will be all the more pronounced.

An interesting sidelight on Ernie's personality was dug out of a story that was sent out of the training camp down South of the New York Yankees, the club from which Johnson departed to take over the managerial reins at Portland.

The Yankees, critics assert, look most disappointing. Something was wrong and the newspapermen began digging around to find out the trouble. This was included in the scribner's story:

"One of the young ball players on the club complained to newspapermen that he was going to quit baseball. He is a college man and went into baseball with a big reputation.

"There is no chance with this baseball club," he said, "and if I don't stay with this club I'll have to go back to the minors. No one has paid any attention to me. I came up as a utility infielder and it was weeks before anyone even spoke to me. Ernie Johnson was the only man on the club who took an interest in me. He tried to teach me a few things and he told me a lot of other things that were valuable. But to the rest, I wasn't even a member of the team."

Johnson is a friend of the young ball player and he'll go out of his way to help the kids that hustle and are willing to learn but he hasn't any time for the lazy ball player. You can bet this—that Portland will have hustling ball players or they won't stay with Portland.

The club has added a lot of punch and color. President Tom Turner went out and purchased nine major leaguers. These are Manager Johnson, infielder; Elmer Smith, outfielder; Roy Elsch, outfielder; Leonard Metz, infielder; Leo Mangum, pitcher; "Doc" Prothro, infielder; Charles Berry, catcher; Johnny Couch, pitcher, and Bill Bagwell, infielder.

FIRST WEEK IN MAY RESERVED FOR BIG EVENT

Many of Southland's Best Known Players, Officers Expected to Come Here

August 4, 5, 6 and 7 have been reserved with the Southern California Golf association for the Santa Ana Country club's first annual invitational tournament, an event that will cement the local organization with all the "big league" golfing bodies of the state.

To this tournament will come close to 100 of Southern California's premier male swingers to say nothing of numerous high golfing officials of clubs throughout this part of the state.

The board of directors will plunge into the arduous task of arranging for the affair soon after the club's annual meeting of members at their clubhouses on the course April 19.

By-laws call for the election of four new members of the board this month and when these have been installed the directors will assemble the following Monday night, April 26, to elect president, vice-president, secretary and treasurer.

Plans for the conduct of the invitational tournament will be one of the first problems of the new board, it is understood.

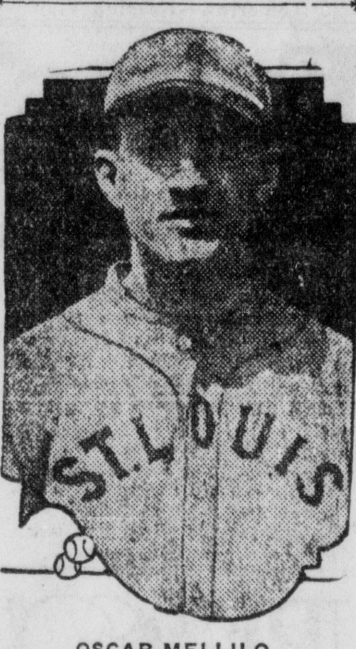

Authorities at the Santa Ana organization had hoped to conduct their first annual invitational last summer but this was found impossible when the opening of the club's "second nine" was inadvertently delayed. Rather than attempt to stage the tourney on an abbreviated course the local men cancelled the dates they had reserved with the Southern California association.

The links are in splendid condition now, however, and the recent rainstorm will serve to add to the health of the grass greens and fairways. By summer, club officials believe, the course will rank second to none in the Southern California.

Not only will the invitational classic bring scores of fine golfers and subsequent exhibitions of near perfection play but will tend to publicize the city near and far for these events always are given generous space in the large newspaper.

President cup matches are being conducted at the Santa Ana club now and the second annual club championship tournament will follow immediately.

COMES THROUGH

OSCAR MELLILO

One of the most promising youngsters to come to the majors this season is Oscar Melillo of the St. Louis Browns. Melillo is an infielder, fair hitter and sensational fielder. He was with Milwaukee last year. Melillo has shown to such good advantage in the training camp of the Browns that Manager Sieler is finding it a rather difficult problem to select his regular inner defense.

SPORTS OF ALL SORTS

With four of the very best players in the United States, assured of places on the Wightman cup team, America's chances to bring the classic cup back home from England are most promising.

The United States Lawn Tennis association, recruited the strongest possible team for the invasion in naming Helen Wills, national champion, Elizabeth Ryan, Mary K. Browne and Mrs. Zinderstein Jessup.

It caused some surprise when Mrs. Molla Mallory, former champion and one of the most experienced internationalists, was "not" appointed as a member of the team but officials of the association explained that she had made other plans for the summer and had asked not to be considered as a candidate.

There were reports that Mrs. Mallory did not want to accept a place beneath that of Miss Ryan, who was named as the No. 2 player but Mrs. Mallory denied this.

"I made arrangements a long while ago to sail early in April for a visit to Norway and Sweden and for this reason I couldn't be sure that I would be able to play in Paris or in London," she said.

The team is to play a special team match in Paris against the French women and then leave for England to play in the Wightman cup matches and the British national championships at Wimbledon.

The French and British teams have not been named but it is almost certain that Miss Didi Vlasto and Henrietta Contosavlous will play on the French team. Miss Suzanne Lenglen, if she has recovered from her indisposition, may also play against the Americans.

'LOOK OUT FOR CARDINALS' N. L. PASSWORD

By HENRY L. FARRELL
(United Press Sports Editor)

NEW YORK, April 8.—"If that team of Hornsby's gets any kind of pitching this season, the National league end of the world's series may be played in St. Louis," Hughie Jennings, assistant manager of the New York Giants, said recently in discussing baseball at the Asheville sanatorium where he is undergoing treatment for a breakdown.

"The Cardinals have powerful hitting and a sound defense. In Hornsby and Jim Bottomley they have the best and most dangerous batters in the league and if the pitchers hold up, they don't need a thing.

"Only a manager who has been up against the St. Louis club knows what it means to have two batters like Hornsby and Bottomley to stop. They simply can't be stopped as their batting averages prove. Up near the top of the batting order it is impossible to keep runners off the bases every time they come up and it is just as impossible to keep them from hitting.

Worry Rival Managers. "It is no pleasant outlook for a manager to figure that two such batters will be up at least two or three times in a game with runs on the base and the possibility that the ball will be given a ride out of the park."

It is the general opinion of smart critics that the Cardinals will not require a super-star pitching staff to prove a deadly menace to the pennant hopes of rival clubs. Consistent pitching of only a fair nature will be enough to turn in a great many games with such a heavy attack. Teams like the Cincinnati Reds with a less deadly attack need more pitching than the Cards because they are forced to hold their opponents to fewer runs.

Hornsby made good in his first season as a manager and his game was not affected by the added responsibility of managing a club that had to be put through an entirely different system of play. The chances are good that Hornsby will be even more valuable this season because he will have fewer worries on his mind, more confidence and greater trust from his players.

Have High Class Coach. The team also has been improved by the addition of a high class coach in Bill Killefer, former manager of the Chicago Cubs and one of the game's greatest catchers in his palmy days.

Hornsby was frank enough to admit last season that he didn't know enough about pitching to correct the faults of his youngsters but he showed that he knew a lot about handling the staff. Killefer is just the type of an assistant to develop the youngsters on the staff and take a lot of the responsibility off the shoulders of Hornsby.

As a defensive and offensive combination, the St. Louis infield is better than that of the Pittsburgh Pirates and the Cincinnati Reds and is just as good as that of the New York Giants.

Jim Bottomley ranks next and very close to George Kelly as the best first baseman in the National league. If Hornsby is not the best second baseman in the league he is as good as Frank Frisch. Tom Thoenen is one of the best shortstops and he is just developing and Lester Bell is a corner at third base. The team also has good infield reserves in Torporcator, Taylor and Flowers.

There certainly is nothing wrong with an outfield consisting of Felipe Muller, "Knucks" Blades, "Tay" Douthett and Chick Hafey, who is one of the best prospects in the game. There are also good reserves in Max Fack, Walter Roettger, and Jack Smith.

Bob O'Farrell, the former Chicago catcher, will have to do the bulk of the work behind the bat and he is a reliable and experienced player. Hornsby thinks a lot of Bill Warwick, from the San Antonio club and Killefer may be able to do a lot for him.

Bill Sherdel, Jesse Haines, Duster Mails, Vic Keen, Allan Sotheron, Leo Dickerman, Flint Rhem and Johnny Stuart will have to do most of the pitching. Sylvester Johnson is back from the Pacific Coast league and there are a number of promising youngsters in Killefer's care.

RANK OUTSIDER WINS! PAYS BACKERS AT ODDS OF 100-1

"The King of Clubs" beat "Zionist," the favorite, by a head in the Lincolnshire handicap, England, with Pat Donoghue, son of the famous Steve Donoghue, up. Steve also rode in the race and came in last. The winner paid 100 to 1.

YANKEES BEGIN TO SHOW REAL CLASS, POWER

NEW YORK, April 8.—Baseball with its uncertain ways, may produce any kind of surprise during the regular season, but it can hardly equal what the training season produced in the New York Yankees.

Not so many weeks ago, in their first week of training, the former American league champions looked like a grammar school squad on a picnic. They appeared to be the only serious rival of the Boston Red Sox for last place.

But in a few weeks, as if by the influence of a magic wand, the Yankees became not only a ball club but a dangerous contender for the American league pennant.

Hit Good Pitching. The estimate of the strength of the Yankees is not based entirely on the form shown in the exhibition series with the Brooklyn Robins, but the heartless way in which they have murdered high class pitching means something.

For the first time since Babe Ruth joined the club, Miller Huggins has a team that is not built around Babe Ruth. The Babe, trying desperately for a comeback, is only one of the ball players now and even if he fails to come through the team will not suffer.

Babe About Tough? There are many smart baseball men, friendly toward Ruth, who believe he is reaching the end of his string. He is in better physical shape than he was last year, but the ball players who have been watching him are of the opinion that he has lost his eye.

Even if he does not hit a flock of home runs, the Babe will be a valuable ball player, but he hasn't his job cinched with Paschal and Cullip on the bench waiting to step in.

It seems certain now that the Yankees will be in the pennant race with the Senators, the Athletics and the Browns and with four clubs so closely matched, the American league race ought to be a free for all from the start.

Billy Evans Says

Home runs have played an important role in the meteoric career of Paul Waner.

Who is Paul Waner? You ask. He is the young man for whom the Pittsburgh ball club paid a sum estimated to be in the neighborhood of $100,000. Waner was the star outfielder of the San Francisco team of the Pacific Coast league last year.

Opportunity came in the form of an exhibition game against a team composed of big leaguers and players from the Pacific Coast league. It was at the close of the 1922 season, Waner was a member of the A. A. Oklahoma Independents, bigooh.

Two were out, the bases filled in the last half of the ninth when Waner stepped to the plate. He had already made three hits in four times up. The score was 3-1 in favor of the big leaguers. On eight other occasions prior to this Dick Merrill, well stung, Waner, with a base hit, had won games in the ninth.

Waner worked the count to three balls and two strikes. The pitcher tried to slip over a fast one. Waner took a healthy swing, a home run resulted and Waner was on his way to fame and fortune.

A scout from the San Francisco team of the Coast league saw the game. Waner's ability to hit the pill impressed him, particularly the home run in the ninth inning pinch. He signed him.

Waner was just a rookie with the San Francisco club. There were many stars on the team and for weeks he warmed the bench, never getting a chance to prove his worth. It finally came in a game with Los Angeles.

For nine innings the two teams were dead-locked, each having scored a run. In the eleventh Los Angeles broke the tie, putting over two tallies, apparently clinching the game.

Frisco staged a rally and managed to get runners on first and third with two down. A home run would win the ball game.

Manager Ellison called on Waner. The 19-year-old recruit carefully selected his bat and walked to the plate with the confidence born of a veteran star.

OLIVER THINKS SAN DIEGO TO WIN BIG MEET

"Tex" Oliver, the swarthy young coach of the San Diego high school track squad and, incidentally, probable skipper of the next Santa Ana high school football team, is pretty sure his Hilltop clunderpathers are going to win the annual Coast Preparatory league meet at Pasadena a week from Saturday.

Most of the prognosticators have assiduously stuck by Pasadena as the team to dethrone last year's champions but Oliver, who was in Santa Ana the other day on business connected with the offer made him relative to the local gridiron post, feels that San Diego is just about as good as "in" right now.

"I am not underestimating Pasadena, Santa Ana and Long Beach," Oliver stated, "but I figure we have more certain first place men and are stronger than the other contestants in seconds, thirds and fourths."

Moeller is S. D. Ace. Eddie Moeller, the giant San Diego football player, is really the ace of the Hilltop trackmen. He is virtually certain to win the discus for he has thrown the platter better than 140 feet several times in competition this spring and no other contestant can come very close to that. Stocks, Pasadena, and Finley, Long Beach, are the best of the other discus throwers.

Moeller also is a fine shot putter but he may lose to Schleimer, Pasadena, in this event. Schleimer has shoved the 12-pound ball better than 47 feet.

San Diego is particularly strong in the pole vault, high jump, hurdles and mile. Hubbard and Fulton, the Hilltop vaulters, can scale 12 feet. Everett, Ferguson and Kleinsmid are good for 5 feet, 8 inches in the high jump. Ritchey and Chase are fast timber toppers and Brown can run the mile in 4:44.

Pasadena has strength, too. Captain Mel Caines rates as good as any of the league's sprinters. "Judy" Welch is probably the best prep high hurdler in the state. Liff can scamper through a mile under 4:50 and Stocks is a fleet low hurdler. A good weight thrower and a fine broad jumper.

Santa Ana Has Chance. Santa Ana has five possible first place men and most of the hopes of the local school will rest with them. Harvey Bear has a good chance of winning the 100 and 200. Harold English has run faster in the 440 than any man in the league to date. Bob McKean looks a probable winner in the 880 and Harold Breeding is a cinch to take the mile. If Captain Howard Paul is in shape he should win the broad jump, place in the 100 and take a first or second in the low hurdles.

Local Beach hasn't enough first place men to get very far in the opinion of wise track followers. The Jackrabbits have a good sprinter in Doty, who won both the 100 and 200 in the Coast league meet last season, a good weight man in Finley and a fair high jumper in Ballou but that about lets them out as far as first place grabbers is concerned.

Little is known of the strength of Glendale, Whittier, South Pasadena and Alhambra but they the hardy of the class in track of the "Big Four."

Kid Mexico Gets Suspension From Cal. Ring Board

Todd Faulkner (Kid Mexico) well known Huntington Beach middleweight boxer, has been suspended indefinitely by the State Athletic commission, according to dispatches received here today. Failure to keep in condition was said to have been the reason for Mexico's disbarment.

Unable to get ring contests, the veteran now will devote his time to managing boxers, it is understood. He already has Marty Kane, a promising lightweight, under agreement and expects to add several other boxers to his string, it is said.

Mexico was a popular main-eventer here during the heyday of the Delhi arena and at one time was considered one of the best middleweights on the Pacific Coast.

Our Market is centrally located at 115 E. Fourth—Anderson's.

TEN PIN TOPPLER

CHARLIE REINLIE

Meet Charlie Reinlie, Racine (Wis.) bowler, who gained immortal fame by rolling a 300 game at the A. B. C. tournament, Toledo, the other day. His score equaled the perfect game mark hung up by Billy Knox of Philadelphia 13 years ago. Oddly enough, Knox also made his record feat in the A. B. C. at Toledo. Reinlie was paired with R. Reisel, who hit 226, giving them a total of 526, said to be a new all-time doubles A. B. C. record.

Hair Dry, Brittle
from Constant
Waving, Curling

The constant curling and waving demanded by present styles in bobbed hair, slowly burns the color, lustre and very life from the hair, leaving it dry, faded, brittle, and full of dandruff; then the hair roots shrink and the hair falls out fast.

Since girls just must curl and wave the hair to appear their prettiest, try "Dandine" to offset any bad effects. After the first application your hair will take on new life and that healthy, youthful lustre, become incomparably soft, wavy and appear twice as thick and abundant. Falling hair stops and dandruff disappears.

A 35-cent bottle of refreshing "Dandine" from any drug store or toilet counter will do wonders for any girl's hair. It goes right to the roots, invigorates, nourishes and strengthens them, helping the hair to grow thick, healthy and luxuriant.—Adv.

The WOMAN'S DAY

By Allene Sumner

My Say-Sol

"Too many things are being invented. Improvements come so fast that perfectly good articles are thrown into the discard in the human passion to have the newest." Said by former Secretary of War Newton D. Baker, addressing a body of engineers. One more reason why the H. C. of L. forbids babies but puts a radio with all the super-attachments in every American home.

Handsome young Italian cavalry officer shoots himself because his suit of love is spurned by American girl. And the post said, "Love is a woman's ailment." The tables are turned a bit in this modern day when woman combines a few other things with her "all". Some men should learn the same valuable lesson!

Hollywood's stars are eating carrots instead of oatmeal for breakfast—grated raw. Their press agents say that these tales of women dying from too much dieting have worried the screen girls!

Mrs. Rose Garvey, 118, died a day or so ago. Three bachelor sons, aged 82, 74 and 70, buried her. They had vowed that not one of them would marry as long as his mother lived. One wonders if a woman who accepts so much can rest easy in her grave?

Books and Authors
The moral is, say some, that literary gentlemen should be more cautious than to marry literary wives. This, because of Marie Sautus' recently published life of her famous husband man of letters, called "Edgar Sautus: The Man." Critics say that "her book is truthful to the verge of cruelty." One way of "getting even!" Speaking of wives who write husbands' lives, there is Jessie Conrad's "Joseph Conrad as I Knew Him," in gentle, loving vein. The Sautus book will, doubtless, be the better seller, albeit Conrad is the better known man Sautus.

Woman's Beauty
"If one looks for grooming and a well dressed appearance, the American woman, as a whole, is far superior to the women abroad, even French women. But, if one looks for distinction and individuality, the European woman is more beautiful. This from the ruby lips of Greta Garbo, Swedish movie star.

World O' Fashion
You don't need to possess a cold this spring to flaunt a man's handkerchief, acre-lot size. Men's moustaches are the only kind that "us girls" will carry with our mannish tailored suits and laped topsuits this spring. Rather incongruous, though, to find them of whispy chiffon and gorgets.

World Gastronomy
Only certain foods should be eaten for certain moods. Milk toast and baked apple when you are tired; fresh fruit, toast, and coffee when grief-stricken; grape fruit and spinach when worried; cold water and cream soup when angry. All this from Ida Bailey Allen's new book called "Your Foods and You."

"My Beauty Beliefs"

By INEZ HAYNES GILMORE IRWIN
Author of "Phoebe and Ernest," "Gertrude Haviland's Divorce," and "Gideon."

There is no excuse for a woman being physically unattractive today. The homeliest woman on earth may become a thing of beauty and a joy forever if she finds her type.

The homely woman who wears Anglo-Saxon clothes and viewpoint may become tantalizingly charming by changing in clothes and expression into a languorous dreamy Oriental.

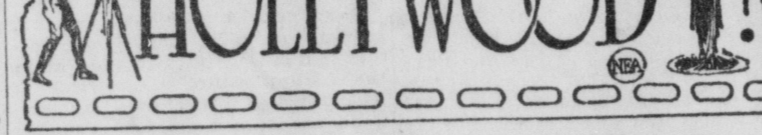

Sloe eyes, straight black hair, a spaghetti-like figure that made her homely Mrs. Smith, many convert her into the lovely Princess Fantan if she dresses in Oriental splendor to match her Oriental face.

In short, homeliness can be capitalized by studying it and finding where to classify and pigeonhole it. I would tell the young girl whose facial stock does not seem above par, to—

Flirt violently with the old gentlemen—
Take young men very seriously—
Play the old listening game, listening hard and sympathetically with the look of one inspired by immortal truths.

I have seen homely women made alluring by the donning of quaint I love this age of bare arms and visible legs. There is nothing prettier to me than these herds of rounded legs walking down our streets these days.

Pretty arms and legs make any girl pretty. The exodus of the Saturday night tub and the debut of the nightly splash and the morning shower is our greatest beauty maker.

HOLLYWOOD, April 8.—Made-line Brandeis has returned to a brief but heroic attempt to produce films that did not bear the Hollywood taint—sex.

In her pictures, which were cheap but interesting, there was none of the flaunting of sex for commercial gain. It would seem that without this no picture shall survive.

If she had the money to stick it out, she might have become a big factor in Hollywood one day.

The latest thing in fastidious undertakings is housed in a doll-like shop on the boulevard—it is a powder-buffing concern. Here facial darts are mixed to harmonize with Milady's natural tones. Here Pola buys her powdered olive pastes and Betty Bronson acquires her snow-drops color.

One star in Hollywood obeys that inner command—to let the public see but not hear—Ramon Novarro.

He has never made a public appearance and doesn't intend to.

"To see me on the screen should be plenty enough for them," he says. "Why prance out on the stage. This not only would kill my audience but myself."

Gloria is certainly the versatile person. Most stars, when they sit upon the shaly pinnacle of fame, demand roles "in accord with position and temperament." Not so for Swanson. One day she is queen of a waffle parlor, another a tomboy with very bad manners, another an incorrigible miss who refuses the taming touch of civilization.

Rudolph Valentino recently, through his business manager refused to play "The Gutter Gentleman"—a story especially written for him by Jack Boyle—because, it was said, the title role did not sprinkle the sheik with sufficient dignity.

friends who, impatient with her penury and stopped growth mentally, are drifting away.

"How cruel of them," she moans. "Just because I haven't time to read like they have and keep up with their interests!"

And when one is sufficiently brave to poo-poo this argument and tell her she'd have time to read a little bit if she dared spend a penny, she says:

"It's all right for you to talk with your salary. But how can I afford to hire all those things done?"

And the so evident, glaring, obvious answer is that her salary would increase as her mentality pepped up.

Again we say—what fools these mortals be!

Claiming to be the tallest people in England, a husband and wife whose home is in Plymouth have started on a cycling tour of the world.

Chimpanzees, when wounded, dress the cut with certain grass and leaves, and know exactly what sort to select.

A chemist at Manchester, England, has discovered a cheap black dye which will not rot cotton goods.

Ruins of a city about 1500 years old have just been found in Sweden.

Menus for the Family

BY SISTER MARY

Breakfast—Baked rhubarb, cereal, thin cream, egg toast, milk, coffee.

Luncheon—Salmon fritters, creamed cauliflower and carrots, whole wheat bread, apple sauce, milk, tea.

Dinner—Cream of celery soup, filets of sole with spinach and creole sauce, rye bread, molded fruit salad, toasted crackers, milk, coffee.

No dessert is suggested for the dinner menu since a fruit salad is planned. The creamed vegetable soup and the use of a vegetable with the fish make it unnecessary to serve another vegetable.

Any fish can be used in place of salmon in the luncheon fritters but canned salmon is universally available and it is chosen for the recipe.

Salmon Fritters
One cup drained, chopped salmon, 1 tablespoon minced parsley, 1-2 teaspoon salt, 2 table-spoons olive oil, 1 cup flour, 1 teaspoon baking powder, 1-2 cup cold water.

Sprinkle salmon with lemon juice and parsley and let stand while mixing fritter batter. Mix and sift flour, baking powder and salt. Beat yolks of eggs well with water. Add flour and mix until perfectly smooth. Beat in oil. When mixture is perfectly blended add prepared fish. Fold in whites of eggs beaten until stiff and dry.

Drop from tip of spoon into deep hot fat and cook for seven minutes. The fat should be hot enough to brown an inch cube of bread from the soft part of the loaf in 60 seconds or if a thermometer is used from 350 to 380 degrees Fahrenheit.

Drain fritters on soft absorbent paper when done and serve very hot.

Any good salad oil or melted butter can be used in place of olive oil.

Translations Of French Terms

BY SISTER MARY

Sometimes we find ourselves more or less puzzled over the terms used in fashionable restaurants for such everyday affairs as soup or potatoes. It doesn't seem as if warmed-over fried-potatoes-with-onion could really be none other than "pommes de terre a la Lyonnaise," but it is, and we decide there's not so much in a name after all.

And the numerous sauces are confusing. Hollandaise, Bechamel, Souffle, Chantilly, Creole and so on and so forth.

A la, au and aux mean the same, being mere forms of grammar. The literal translation is "with it." For instance, asperges a la Hollandaise means asparagus with Hollandaise sauce.

Au gratin—baked fish covered with buttered and browned crumbs.

Au naturel—in natural form without cooking or without the addition of a sauce.

Aubergine—eggplant.

Bearnaise (a la)—with Bearnaise the consistency of mayonnaise. It is highly seasoned and is made thick sauce, which is a tart hot sauce about with egg yolks.

Blisque—thick cream soup usually made from shellfish or a rich ice cream containing finely chopped nuts.

Blanquette—white meat in rich cream sauce.

Bœuf a la jardiniere—braised beef with mixed vegetables.

Bombe glaces—Two kinds of ice cream or an ice and a cream mound, the outside is of one kind and the filling of another.

Bouquet of herbs—a sprig each of thyme, marjoram, parsley and summer savory.

Bourgeois (a la)—in average family style.

Cafe au lait—coffee with milk.

Canard—duck.

Caneton—duckling.

Champignons—mushrooms.

Chaud-froid—hot-cold. In cookery a jellied sauce.

Chartreuse—a mold of aspic filled with meat or vegetables. Used to denote anything concealed.

Chou-fleur—cauliflower.

Dom-tasse—half cup. Used for after-dinner coffee.

En belleve—in aspic jelly.

En coquilles—in shells.

Homard—lobster.

Huitres—oysters.

Jardiniere—vegetables cut in match-like strips.

Laitue—lettuce.

Macedoine—a mixture of vegetables.

Magre—a soup without meat.

Marrons—chestnuts.

Parade—milk thickened with bread and cooked to a paste.

Pate de foie gras—a small patty filled with a paste made of fattened geese livers.

Potage—soup.

Poulets sautes—fried chicken.

Puree—a smooth pulp. Vegetables rubbed through a sieve to make a thick soup.

Ragout—a highly seasoned stew.

Rechauffe—warmed over.

Rodi (e)—roasted.

Roux—brown butter and flour.

Foundation for brown sauce.

Salpicon—a delicate mixture of fruits or meats.

Sorbet—frozen punch.

Souffle—any dish that is literally "puffed up."

Supreme—white cream sauce made with chicken stock.

BEAUTY CHATS

EDNA KENT FORBES

DON'T SLUMP
The one time when beauty treatments are most necessary is the one time no woman wants to bother with them. Not even the very vain ones want to fuss with creams and such things when they are thoroughly tired out. Yet it does a great deal of harm to let the faces settle into draggy lines even for a day.

Try the simple cold cream and hot water treatment when you are fatigued and show it. Rub a generous amount of cleansing cream over the face and neck, work in well with the fingers—the treatment need not last over a minute—then wring your face cloth from hot water and hold it over the skin. Repeat several times, the heat draws out the cream from the pores, and along with it the dirt the oils have softened. The heat brings fresh blood to the skin, the cream takes away the gray, dry look that fatigue gives the complexion.

By wiping over the face with the hot wet cloth. You remove enough of the cream to keep the skin from being greasy afterward. If you have ice, wrap a bit in an old handkerchief or any thin piece of muslin and rub this over the face and neck for a few minutes to conclude the treatment. If you haven't ice, rinse with water as cold as you can get it, and put a few drops of tincture of benzoin in the basin. This is an excellent, mild astringent.

The result of the treatment will be a fresh, rested looking face, but a feeling of real rest. I know no better cure for fatigue than the comfortable feeling that one doesn't look tired. And this treatment is restful physically, it's relaxing and stimulating, too. A hot bath would be even better.

Miss E. P.—I do not understand why the druggist labeled the hair tonic as "poison," unless he put something into the alcohol to denature it that might have been poisonous. I think you should have asked the man the reason for the label. Alcohol as one of the ingredients in a hair tonic would be denatured by being part of the mixture, so there was no reason for doing anything but fill the prescription just as it is given in the formula. If it were done that way, the "Caution" label was unnecessary.

In applying any hair tonic, moisten the tips of your fingers and massage your scalp with them. It takes very little of the tonic as any of it that is spread about on the hair is really of no use, and therefore wasted. It requires considerable time as you should cover the whole scalp and do a great deal of massaging. Several treatments a week are enough.

Tomorrow—Keeping Tidy

THE DREAM GOLFER
But out in the course I find, Be the distance short or long, I have no such peace of mind, For whatever I dreamed in three And the whole that I dreamed in three Will a horrible seven be.

Oh, Hagen, and Jones and Ross, And all of the expert crew, Though by day I'm a total loss, I can beat you and often do. The greatest of fields I've led Again and again in my bed.

At night when I lie in my bed, Soft pillow and nearly asleep, There is never a pit I dread And never a trap so deep, Or a pond or a clump of trees That I cannot carry with ease.

When I lie in my bed at night, I can drive without allice or hook And I pose, with the ball in flight, As the "pros" in the picture book. And there's never a green so far That I cannot dream it in par.

ADVENTURES OF THE TWINS
by OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON

NO. 4—MISTER TINGLING CAN'T MAKE CHANGE

"It's just lovely!" clucked Mrs. Hen.

Mister Tingling got the rent money from Mister Bunny, then thanking Mrs. Bunny for their lovely lunch and the good time they had, the fairman and the Twins took their departure.

The first thing they did was to take poor Biddy Hen to the house in the log behind the bushes—the very one that the bad little goblin had tried to rent to her.

"It's just lovely!" clucked Mrs. Hen. "The very place I'm looking for to hatch out a family. How much is it?"

"Ten cents a month in fairy money," said Mister Tingling. "I'll be around in thirty days to collect."

They left Mrs. Hen scratching around in the soft rotten wood of her new house, to make a nice cozy nest.

Then they went on their travels. "We'll go to Maple Tree Flats next," said Mister Tingling. "The Cracknuts are always ready with their rent, so we'll get there first."

Munch Mouse, the janitor, took them up on the elevator inside of the Maple Tree.

When they stepped off at the floor where the Cracknuts family lived, there stood Daddy Cracknuts himself in his doorway, looking as kind and friendly as an old gray squirrel gentleman can look.

"Why hello there, Tingling!" he said, shaking hands with the fairman. "I see you are in good company. Hello, Nancy and Nick! Helping out as usual, I see. Come right in, all of you. I guess I know what you're after, as it is the thirty-second day of the month."

"You guessed right, Daddy Cracknuts," said Mister Tingling. "It's rent day. And my big pocketbook is still as empty as a balloon, almost. Twenty-five cents in fairy money is all I have."

"Well, you have mine pretty soon, Mister Landlord. I have it all ready for you."

And digging down into his pocket, Daddy Cracknuts pulled out a brand new bill, which he slowly unfolded and laid on the table.

Mister Tingling's eyes nearly popped out of his head. "Ten dollars!" he gasped. "I—I'm afraid I can't change it."

"That's too bad," said Daddy Cracknuts, folding it up again and putting it into his pocket. "Just wait and I'll see if Ma has the amount. Ma! Oh, Ma! Here's the landlord. Have you any money?"

"The landlord!" called Mrs. Cracknuts. "I'll be right in. I want to see him about some new wall paper for the dining room."

And in she bustled.

"Wall-paper!" said Mister Tingling.

WINTERSBURG

WINTERSBURG, April 8.—A special baptismal service will be held at the Wintersburg Methodist Episcopal church next Sunday morning at 11 o'clock, at which time a number of babies will be baptized.

The evening service, which for some weeks past has been held under the auspices of the different organizations of the local church, will this Sunday be in charge of the Pioneer Y. M. C. A. club, which has secured the promise of Ralph Smalley, Y. M. C. A. secretary in Santa Ana, to speak at this time. Special musical numbers are planned by the Pioneers for the occasion, one of which will be a violin solo given by Norman McKenzie, of Huntington Beach, whose father some years ago was pastor of the local church.

Easter was observed at the Wintersburg Japanese Presbyterian mission. Opening the program, which began at 2 o'clock, were two hymns, sung in Japanese by the Japanese congregation which numbered about 60.

Mrs. O. B. Byram was accompanist for all the musical numbers and the song, "He Did Not Die in Vain," was sung by a quartet, Mrs. Byram, Phil McClintock, superintendent of the Sunday school, Mrs. Olive Ray and Miss Fern Byram. The same quartet, assisted by Dudley Smith, sang "Christ Arose." At the conclusion of the program, the children of the school were presented with Easter tokens.

The Easter message, delivered by the mission pastor, the Rev. Paul Watenabe, followed the program. Among visitors at the mission Eastern service, besides those who assisted in the services, were Mrs. P. P. McClintock, Mrs. Ralph Rumbold, Eugene Edwards, Jr., Miss Ruth Goble, O. B. Byram and Walter Baker.

The Charles Preston meat market has moved into new quarters. New building activities in the town have caused considerable moving lately. The Preston market has moved into the old post-office room on Main street.

For the past several weeks, the room has been occupied by the Tustin Cleaners. The cleaning establishment has moved into the quarters in the large two-story building, vacated by Preston.

The two-story building is to be torn down and a new business building erected, it is reported. The work will be started when the new one-story brick building now under construction, at Main and D streets is completed. The cleaning establishment will move into the new building at that time.

LIGHT SYSTEM ASSESSMENTS ARE PAYABLE

ORANGE, April 8.—Assessments on the street lighting system installed on North Orange and North Cleveland streets are due and payable, according to C. C. Bonebrake, city engineer. Payment must be made within 20 days from last Tuesday or the assessments will go to bonds. The bonds extend over seven per cent interest, payable semi-annually.

Twenty-two ornamental lights, 15 on North Orange street, and seven on North Cleveland street, cost $247.75, including all incidental expenses. Because of the beauty of the standards, Bonebrake appealed to the board of trustees to order a similar design installed on Chapman avenue and on Glassell street to replace the plain posts now in use. Action on the matter has been deferred until a later date.

WIDENING OF SOUTH MAIN

We know of no street in Santa Ana that is too wide; we know the names of several that are not wide enough for today's uses, let alone wide enough to meet the calls that will be made upon them by the traffic of the future.

Whenever it is possible to do so at a cost within reason, a street should be widened. We believe that as a principle this statement will receive general approval in Santa Ana. Also, we feel sure that a wide street, in general, is worth all that it costs to get it. In that regard, width is just like paving; once done, there is none who would have it undone.

These remarks are prompted by the decision to widen South Main street. We see no mistake in the decision of the City Council unless it was a mistake to cut down the added width from ten feet to six feet for a section comprising two blocks. We do regret the fact that quite a number of fine street trees will have to be sacrificed. We have not agreed, and do not now agree with the City Council in its policy of cutting street trees in order to give somewhat of an added display of ornamental street lights. While we get more light and see more lights during the evening, the loss of trees gives to us during the day an impression of a street ornamented by telephone and electric light poles. There are ten who travel the street in day to one in night.

However, these observations and considerations are aside from the real importance of widening of South Main. That street has grown tremendously in civic importance during the past three years, and will continue to grow in that way. While there will be regret over the loss of trees and some hardships worked because of the cost of meeting the order for widening, it is altogether likely that five years hence all of those living or doing business on the street will be glad that the widening was accomplished.

REVISING THE CRIMINAL CODE

The California commission for revision of the criminal code is now organized and is proceeding in a methodical way to perform its task. This is being done also in other states in various ways, is some by official commissions and in others by committees of the bar associations. For several years this work has been going on here and there, and in a number of states some legislation has been effected, but in no state has it been of a radical or revolutionary character. Since these commissions are composed chiefly, if not entirely, of lawyers, no radical change may be expected to be recommended.

There is a feeling everywhere that our court procedure is not producing results in the dealing with crime. There is an arithmetical diminution of results from the beginning. Of the perpetrators of crime, too small a percentage are detected and arrested. Of those arrested, too few are really brought to trial. Of those indicted and tried, too few are convicted. Of those convicted, too few have their conviction affirmed by the supreme court and actually get into the penitentiary. Of those who get into the penitentiary, too few stay there long enough to effect reform or adequately protect society. The process all along the way leaks like a colander.

It may be that a few of the colander holes might be plugged up by legislation recommended by these commissions, but there would be plenty left. So long as the bench is obsessed with its present reverence for technicalities and continues to consider the way of doing things of more importance than the things themselves, and so long as lawyers hold to the code that an attorney is justified in using almost any means whatever in promoting the interest of his clients and securing the freedom from punishment of offenders against the law, we are not likely to see much that will be truly effective in court reform. It is the spirit, and not so much the laws and rules, that needs reforming.

CHILDREN AND COLORS

"Let the child choose the color of its own dress or suit" says an art authority. "Children suffer a great deal from being dressed in colors of grown-ups' choice."

Possibly this is true. But people who see children's clothes from the dry-goods-store point of view are inclined to believe that children are allowed only too much latitude in the indulgence of their whims. Children demanding this and that beyond their years or the family purse are common. Children bored by much indulgence are equally so.

Yet the art man may be right after all. Perhaps if the child is allowed a choice of color and form, while being given instruction in quality of textiles, a knowledge that purses have limits and that wrong choice must be paid for by wearing the garment its due time anyhow, all ends may be served.

Wearing the wrong color in childhood may be a dismal business. But youthful ennu and ignorance of values are more than dismal. They are tragic.

Maybe along about 1925, when Congress has had ample time to digest the 1920 census, it will begin to think about apportioning congressional representation among the states on the basis of the 1920 census.

ADS IN THE SKY?

Grindell Mathews, the English inventor who discovered the alleged "death ray," now comes forward with a light projector which he says can be used to print advertising on the sky at night. The night sky becomes an immense screen, and reading matter or pictures thrown upon it at a great height can be seen clearly from the ground, over a wide area.

French rights to the new device have already been sold, and the inventor is coming over to dispose of them in this country—the Chosen Land of advertising.

So there is probably no hope against universal commercialism. Some slight progress is alleged to have been made lately in some places—not in Orange county—in restricting billboards along highways and scenic routes; but what use is it to banish commercial exploitation from the land, if the heavens themselves are to be made one great billboard? The stars will be lost among cigaret and lipstick ads.

Nature-lovers will be driven indoors, or out to the woods. There will be a new premium on isolation. But maybe his sky ad scheme will turn out to be as much of a false alarm as did his so-called "death ray."

Sugar As An Issue

Modesto News-Herald

It is reported from Washington that the opposition to the administration, starting through an investigation in the senate of the tariff commission, intends to make the sugar tariff the paramount issue in the coming campaign. If this is true, then the opposition is going to be as sadly disappointed as it was in its selection of issues for the 1924 campaign.

For the tariff on sugar is one of the schedules most easily defended by the advocate of protection to American industries. It is the theory of the sugar tariff proponents that this duty on foreign sugar affords protection to the American sugar growing industry which without it would languish and expire altogether. And the sugar industry is important now, not only to the southern cane sugar region, but to Colorado, Utah and other states in the north and west where the growing of sugar beets has become a very important industry.

The prices of sugar to the housewife now is not excessive. But it is the theory of the free traders that if this tariff were taken off the price of sugar would be a trifle lower. Possibly this might be true for a brief period of time, until the American sugar growers were put out of business, and the farmers in several states thereby impoverished.

Naming of Nations

San Francisco Chronicle

How many of the twenty countries in Central and South America can you name? This question, put by a South African business man visiting San Francisco, suggests a game as interesting as cross-words and far more profitable.

Three men, who thought themselves fairly well informed, undertook the task. Two of them managed to list fourteen countries apiece, but not the same fourteen. The third managed nineteen but put in Cuba, Hayti and Santo Domingo, all island republics. By comparing their lists they managed to make up one of twenty countries on the mainland, not including the Canal Zone.

The question was asked by the visitor to illustrate his assertion that we know very little about a field most favorable to our future trade development. Of course, there are foreign trade experts who know about our neighbors. But trade involves more than business letters, catalogues and invoices. It needs human sympathy and friendship between peoples.

Try the game of naming nations. Then see what you can tell about the people, their language, customs and occupations. It will be amusing and, incidentally, will encourage interest in something we ought to be interested about.

WATCH FEEDING OF BABY

It has been said that summer is the purgatory of motherhood. A few years ago, of all the babies born in the United States, from 12 to 20 out of every hundred died in the first year of life and the majority of these deaths took place during the warm months of summer.

Many children are so frail at birth that a slight change in their feeding will throw their weak organs out of balance with often fatal results. Most children, however, are born with healthy bodies and if cared for properly they will pass this time of danger.

The great cause of high death rates among babies is the lack of knowledge on the part of persons entrusted with the care of children. It matters not how poor the parents of a child may be if they will but use proper precautions and care in feeding they can bring their children through this period of danger in safety.

The chief cause of sickness and death among infants is improper food. Probably 25 per cent of the deaths of children under one year of age may be traced to intestinal diseases. The possibility of food becoming unfit for use is greater in the warm months because at this time the chance for infection from disease germs is greater.

Furthermore, food may be and frequently is spoiled by summer temperature. It also happens that the delicate organisms of the child's body may be disarranged by heat and humidity and rendered less able to resist the attack of disease germs or the poisons contained in spoiled foodstuffs.

Children are very apt to have intestinal trouble during the heated season. Many of these show that nature is trying to free the body of the child of harmful materials, but you should remember that in any bowel complaint occurring in babies in the summer time may be the outward and visible sign of the beginning of illness.

Since improper food is the most common cause of intestinal disorders it is the duty of every mother to provide her child with proper food, carefully given at regular intervals. This means increased work for the mother, but this is more than repaid by the child's gain in health, weight and strength.

The best food for babies is, of course, mothers' milk. The greater number of children who die every summer are those who have not been fed in this way. No matter what may be said to the contrary, the child which is breast fed exclusively has by far the best chance to survive and grow.

No milk, no food, no matter how skillfully prepared, can entirely take the place of mother's milk during the first year of a child's life. Many mothers are unable or unwilling to perform this duty and in such cases it is necessary to give the child some other diet.

If a mother is able to nurse her child satisfactorily it is her duty to do so. Many mothers give up nursing their babies too easily. Even when it becomes advisable to supplement the breast feeding with some substitute this step should not be taken until it becomes absolutely necessary. This is especially true during the summer months. No baby under one year of age should be weaned during the hot months of summer if weaning can possibly be avoided. Every day that the baby receives its nourishment from its mother adds much to his chances of survival.

Some More of the Same

Forest Protection Vital

San Bernardino Sun

Indications are that the government will not make provision at this session of Congress for needed fire protection and reforestation in the federal reserves in Southern California. An urgent appeal for $1,000,000 to be used with an equal amount to be sought from the state, counties and private interests has fallen on deaf ears at Washington.

The campaign of education as to the necessity of care for the forests has apparently not made the proper impression at Washington, although the history of the world is full of the story of the collapse of great and prosperous regions because of the disappearance of the forests. When the forests vanish so does the water supply.

The American Reforestation association has recently made a statement that seven-eighths of the forest area of the United States as it was in the primeval stage has been exhausted, and with it has gone five-sixths of the reserve water supply of the country.

In various parts of the country where there were once forests many lakes and streams have disappeared, but the nation goes on, refusing to take official heed of the direction to which the waste of forests is pointing.

In China, many sections of which have been denuded of the forest cover, there are alternating droughts and floods.

The lack of action at Washington is apparently the result of the unfavorable recommendation of the budget bureau, which deals with dollars and cents of the present, not with the prosperity of the future. The budget cannot balance if the sum sought is provided by appropriation.

But this is a problem of the federal government, for the lands within the San Bernardino, Angeles, Cleveland and Santa Barbara forest reserves belong to the government. It is the government that must therefore be in control of the steps that are taken to resist the onslaught of fire. The lands below these mountains that suffer from lack of water are in the hands of hundreds of thousands of private owners, and the state alone can adequately represent them.

The fourth dry summer is approaching. The water level of streams and artesian basins continues to drop. In Big Bear Valley the great reservoir has less water than it has had in years. The snows needed to fill this reservoir did not fall this winter, and it is now too late to hope for material relief.

The dry cycle is temporary. It will be followed by a wet cycle, if history repeats itself, but it emphasizes how important is water and how dangerous is a shortage of water. The forest must be protected against disastrous fires and the amount of money provided by the government is not sufficient.

The campaign of education as to the relation between forests and prosperity must be carried even into the halls of Congress.

Worth While Verse

UP-HILL

Does the road wind up-hill all the way?
Yes, to the very end.
Will the day's journey take the whole long day?
From morn to night, my friend.

But is there for the night a resting place?
A roof for when the slow dark hours begin.
May not the darkness hide it from my face?
You cannot miss that inn.

Shall I meet other wayfarers at night?
Those who have gone before.
Then must I knock, or call when just in sight?
They will not keep you standing at the door.

Shall I find comfort, travel-sore and weak?
Of labor you shall find the sum.
Will there be beds for me and all who come and seek?
Yea, beds for all who come.

—Christina Rossetti.

I had a fearsome argument with Mary Watkins, being more her fault than that it was mine on account of her being such a bun awger, and she started to go in the house mad and slammed the front door still and I passed Puds Simkin's house and he was setting on his front steps eating gum drops out of a bag, giving me a grate idea, and I sed, Hay Puds, will you do me a private favor?

Well, all rite, Puds sed. And he gave me the bag and I went back to Mary Watkins' house and Puds followed me and hid in back of the steps next door to watch, and I gave a fearsome yell to see if it would make Mary Watkins come to her front window, which it did, and I started to take gum drops out of the bag and pretend to eat them without actually doing it, and after about the 5th time she came out to the front door with a expression as if she hadn't came out for anything speshl, and I kept on pretending to eat Puds' gum drops as if she was there, and jest then Puds came out from behind the steps and took the bag away, saying, Times up.

And wat did he do but set on Mary Watkins' steps rite alongside of her and leave her take gum drops out of the bag, and I walked away feeling worse insted of better, thinking, Darn him, the darn strike breaker, jest leave him try to collect that cent, that's all.

Does Prohibition Benefit The Wealthy Class?

From the Brotherhood Broadcaster.

Recently an advocate of the "wets" made this argument to the writer: "Prohibition makes booze so high that the poor people are practically shut off from good liquor, while the rich may obtain all they want and have a good time. Prohibition is a failure."

Listen to what Evangeline Booth, commander of the Salvation Army in the United States, says on the blessing of prohibition:

"It is an illogical thing to say that because a new law has not worked like magic it is best to cast it aside and return to the original state of vice which, because of its awfulness, prompted the enactment of that law. Such a thing would make civilization march backward. It is rather the duty of the citizen, the state and the government to find ways and means to make the law work out its unquestioned benefits to humanity. It can be done. It is being done."

"Enemies of the Volstead law waste their time when they try to tell organizations like the Salvation Army that national prohibition will not work. Vast changes have come about, and to undo them would be to strike a blow at every fireside and every industry in this country."

"Why try to tell the Salvation Army that the park benches are crowded with drunken men as they were before prohibition when we used to gather them in on Thanksgiving day, for example, and fight to salvage them? They are gone. The benches still remain, but the occupants are not drunk any more; they are climbing upward to better things while the public rushes by all unheeding. Why try to tell us that workmen spend their wages before their families can get the money for food, and that men beat their wives and children as in the old days? It simply is not the case."

"If the idle rich persist in making a sport of the prohibition law, the day may come when the boulevardiers, vastly in the minority, will have to be salvaged, out of their attractive places for secret drinking and rescued, if possible, by the Salvation Army just as the poor saloon victim used to be. In that event the sober and progressive working classes will automatically become the aristocrats, and society, so-called, will be turned upside down in its system of organization."

Let's All Envy the Irish

Kansas City Star

Just because fairies have been seen again in Ireland and the news has been cabled to this country, it was thought necessary by some authority to put inverted commas around the word fairies, so that it stood thus—"fairies." That was meant to indicate, we suppose, that the word has no legitimate place in any informed person's vocabulary, in short that there are no fairies.

We much misadvised if anybody who never has seen a fairy or never has been in Ireland has any moral right to attempt to condemn such an impression. Fairies are to the Irish what national legends are to other peoples, and aliens have no more right to discredit them than aliens have to scoff at George Washington's hatchet.

In the cabled account we have the fairies accused of a horse that had fallen into Blackwater river and two witnesses testify they saw the horse being driven off by a leprechaun. At the cutting of a thorn bush other witnesses heard elfin laughter, and tiny candles were picked up on the scene. The account reads all right to us. Elfins laughter is purely statistical and you don't have to stretch form very much to take in the tiny candles. A tiny shoe might have been found too, we shouldn't wonder, if search had been more careful. There's precedent for it in Cinderella's glass slipper, and Cinderella is not of Irish origin either. Fairies indeed have existed pretty nearly everywhere, but in these times they survive only in countries where poets abound. Ireland is full of poets. And that is only to say that the people have retained the gifts of imagination which once was universal.

The good people, as fairies were called in Scotland—and by the way you will find in "David Balfour" and probably elsewhere the theory expounded that Scotland is Ireland's right name and Ireland's Scotland—the names got switched somehow way back yonder—a race that exists to set things right for a race that clumsily got them all wrong. Everybody who believes that things are going to take a turn sometime and be better believes in fairies; but utterly it's only been in Ireland and to the eyes of poets that these agents of universal justice take visible shape. In most countries horses that fall into the river have to be fished out without this particular aid, but in all countries people who own horses hope and expect to sell them for more than they are worth, or trade them and get the better of the bargain—all by the aid of good fortune, which is the fairies' modern name.

We think ourself that Ireland is lucky to have kept its fairies in their physical form while other countries have to nurse a mere abstraction. The Irish have the gayer and prettier view of the processes of benign justice. We hope they can keep it. And really we think they're doing pretty well, seeing the world they live in.

Did You Ever Stop to Think

By Edson R. Waite, Secretary, Shawnee, Okla., Board of Commerce

That the name CALIFORNIA is alluring. The mention of it presents to the mind boundless opportunities.

That the story of California is a most entrancing story—a story of obstacles overcome; a story of victory after victory.

That added prosperity for California is looming bright on the horizon. Business is getting better every day; as business grows so will the state grow.

That the people of California fully realize that increasing the volume of business for the state is of vital importance to every one of them, because the whole plan for development and prosperity is built around better business for the farmer and the city business man.

That no state can inspire confidence on the part of others when it does not inspire the confidence of its own people. Californians have confidence in their state.

That a state which is sold to itself does not have much trouble in selling itself to others.

That a state sold to itself soon attracts the attention of the outside world; states that get favorable attention get the business.

That the people of California are progressive and have a forward vision.

Truthful advertising of the opportunities California has to offer will command attention and consideration from the world.

When Company Comes

Jest before company comes t' our house,
Gee, but we're busy, all right!
Mother keeps everyone jumpin' around
Gettin' things put out o' sight.
All of us kids hafta pick up our toys,
Even if we want t' play—
I don't see why, jest 'cause somebuddy comes,
Toys hafta be put away!

Gran'ma an' Daddy 're busy, you bet;
They hafta clean up the rooms.
Gee, ain't I glad I'm too little t' use
Vacuums an' dust-mops an' brooms!
Then all the furniture hafta be moved—
Mother has got a new plan;
An' when my Dad starts t' kick, Mother says,
"Isn't that just like a man!"

When folks 're comin' from some other town,
Nobuddy gets any rest
Till Mother goes down an' buys lots o' stuff
"So we'll appear at our best."
Gosh, I don't see why, when company comes,
We hafta change all our ways!
Why can't we keep right on havin' some fun
Jest like we do other days?
